A "ham"...Maybe. A pig? Definately.

As are the words of every other person, Brain...Such as you and the Feeble Five.

No it doesn't.

So far, the thread is about N0IMD lying and misrepresenting the truth.

Nope.

None of my groups are moderated, Morkie...I mean Brain. Sorry.

The only "moderation" any of them get's is making sure they are not spammers...After that they can post freely.

I've suggested you read any of the archives you'd care to, but you've obvioulsy never done that.

I've never met you, Brain. Too bad.

Does anybody know what the 900 MHz Channel Numbers are?
I know that the 800 MHz band is channelized.   That is how our Radio Scanners know what frequency to go to when truking. I need the list of Channels for the 900 MHz band. I am sure that there is one.
So if somebody could provide a link of the 900 MHz frequencies and their corresponding Channel Numbers, I woul really appericate it.
Thanks An Happy Holidays. :-)

Go to FCC website and look up the CFR47 part 90 rules. You will be redirected to another server, follow the links. It will take some looking but they are there.

Thanks, Bill!

SC, There was an article about CAP in Popular Communications that addressed the recent change of federal policy on FOUO, or "For Offical Use Only" release of information on certain aspects of radio communication.

Part of that change has been for CAP to withdrawn any and all discussion of it's operating frequencies from cap.gov sites that aren't password protected for CAP members only. The author called into question the validity of that practice.

I made a point of suggesting that we as radio hobbyists need to re-think our liberal publishing of what we hear, even when we are only discussing the user, mode and frequency, not the actual content of the transmission.

And Bill...Morkie doesn't like me because at each and every turn of his attempts to lie, deceive and mislead, I've "busted" him over and over for those acts. Morkie doesn't like having his nose rubbed in his online misdeeds, yet continues to do it.

Thanks again for the kind comments. It wasn't, by the way, the first time in recent history that I've been "published" (not in the professional sense, obviously) in Amateur media. I've had several "hits" in CQ magazine since November of last year, and had an item I originally published in this forum picked up by "Worldradio" as a guest op-ed item a few years ago.

Steve, K4YZ

I have a Radio Shack Pro 97

Right now all that I am getting are my VHF frequencies and not my 800mhz.

I noticed that the VHF have a + below the chanel number and the 800 have a - (minus).

What did I push to create this problem? And how do I undo my mistake.

Thanks
Dave

Senator Kerry's wife is NOT FRENCH!!

She is African-American [really]!!

Senator Kerry has a real problem. He is a Liberal Democrat from the Peoples Socialist Republic of Massachusetts.

The History Of The Middle Finger

Well, now......here's something I never knew before, and now that I know it, I feel compelled to send it on to my more intelligent friends in the hope that they, too, will feel edified. Isn't history more fun when you know something about it?

Before the Battle of Agincourt in 1415, the French, anticipating victory over the English, proposed to cut off the middle finger of all captured English soldiers. Without the middle finger it would be impossible to draw the renowned English longbow and therefore they would be incapable of fighting in the future. This famous English longbow was made of the native English Yew tree, and the act of drawing the longbow was known as "plucking the yew" (or "pluck yew").

Much to the bewilderment of the French, the English won a major upset and began mocking the French by waving their middle fingers at the defeated French, saying, See, we can still pluck yew!

Since 'pluck yew' is rather difficult to say, the difficult consonant cluster at the beginning has gradually changed to a labiodentals fricative F', and thus the words often used in conjunction with the one-finger-salute!

It is also because of the pheasant feathers on the arrows used with the longbow that the symbolic gesture is known as "giving the bird."

IT IS STILL AN APPROPRIATE SALUTE TO THE FRENCH TODAY!
And yew thought yew knew every plucking thing!

Dave,

The "+" is the OPEN MODE. The scanner scans signals transmitted in all systems.

The "-" the scanner stops on the signals that have an ID code that you programmed into the scanner. Like a number for a talkgroup for Motorola scanning. If you are scanning an EDACS system, you MUST have the frequencies in the correct order, usually what I do is place the EDACS system in one bank and start the bank, leaving the top channel in the bank empty. Like bank # 3, channel 300 is left unprogrammed.

To change the "-" to a "+" press MANUAL, press FUNC the use the up/down arrows to select the bank.

Press FUNC the 5. The screen should say "bank open" or "bank closed".

Hope this helps.

BTW, you might want to consider the best software anywhere for your scanner, so you don't have to program your scanner manually.

Here is the link, just click on WIN97.

Slow Idiot:

I am going to do you a BIG favor. You didn't know I was psychic, did you? Well, I am, let me give you a reading...

You are the kind of guy who impresses young children, old women, and mentally and technically challenged individuals. You realize that you have that special autistic ability of being able to rap out, and quite profusely--probably, those taps in code. You were quick to realize that individuals with low self esteem, persons of low self-worth and individuals seeming to lack any skills what-so-ever were VERY impressed by such an ability--of course these individuals also failed to realize just how stupid it was to "hero worship" such a trivial ability.

However, for one such as you, un-remarkable in all other ways type of guy, no great IQ, no other real skills or abilities, a general inability to get along in the general society, etc... for you, this was a way of "feeling special." But, it came at a price, it blinded you to how simple others with real abilities, high IQ's, great skills, good social abilities, etc. viewed you. You simply shut your ears, your eyes and your mind to reality; you finally reached a point where you were unable to care, to see...   You came to live in your "special world" where you are quite special, talented, skilled, etc. You live there now, you think you enlighten us with your wasted "text verbiage" here, you draw upon others good will and tolerance, you keep thinking you have a great message to impart to us. That soon a revelation will strike us and we will all recognize you for the great man you think you are...

This story goes on and on, indeed, it appears as if it is one of those special, un-ending story with you painted as lead hero, painted as such by you, yourself--of course... well, even you can see where I am going with all of this. And, you know it is true. You know we will be watching your behavior in sheer unbelief and amazement, you realize you really do look quite stupid. You realize you have painted yourself into a corner which you cannot escape. And, it dawns upon you, you have nothing to lose, all credibility is lost--you may as well continue on your present course--there is nothing to be lost--it has already been gone for quite a time... still, your only two choices is facing your peers disgust, or quitting, and I am betting you just can't quit. I have never seen an individual like you who was able...

Good luck...

P.S. I am really not psychic--but you already knew that... It is just that such small intellect as you display is simple to define... but you knew that--already. You are simply trapped by the particular mental disorder which plagues you, your world is small and therefore you expect it to be so for all others. You are now but an actor on a stage--your part has already been written, you now only perform your part... a limited performance, a small performance, a vile performance, but still--it is yours, and it tells a much larger picture about you--how much better it would be if performed for people who actually cared...

It's ironic how he thumps his chest, claiming to be the bearer of all that is good and true in the ARS yet he directly and blatantly violates the very standards he champions. For example, the very fact that he uses completely off-topic newsgroups as his soap box is exactly the same as operating a radio on completely un-authorized frequencies and power levels. His mental disorder prevents him from seeing this.

It's quite sad, really. We should pity him.

let me assure I do pity him

I would and perhaps fell more sympathy for him but being one of his favorite targets I find I can not mange may god forgive me

 Select the bank with the - sign under it and press the F key and then the . (Dot/Delay) key to open (+) & close (-) the bank. A Open Bank receives all talk groups and conventional transmissions regardless of settings. A closed trunked system receives only talk groups in your talk group list and a closed conventional system will only receive transmissions on channels with PL's or DCS set to a certain PL.

For example

0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
- + + + - + - + + +

Bank 0 and 6 are closed

Bank 0 is a closed conventional bank

000 CT 460.475 100.0
001 FM 460.075
002 DC 153.770 021

Only transmissions with a PL 100.0 on channel 000 will be recieved, all transmissions on 001 will be received even if they have a PL or DC code. In channel 002 only transmisssions with a DC code of 021 will be received by the radio.

Bank 6 that is closed is a Motorola Type II system

600 MO 856.7775
601 MO 857.7775
602 MO 858.7775
600 MO 859.7775

Two Talk Groups IDS are entered into the talk groups list 58800 Police Dispatach
58816 Police Tactical

Only the two talk groups will be heard and all other talk groups will be ignored.

When a bank is open (+) all transmissions will be heard regardlesss of talk groups ID's or PL/DCS codes used.

To listen to one talk group wait for activity on the talk group and press the PSE key to PAUSE the radio.

HTH,

Keith

I'm happy you two lazy ass Lids found each other, when ya getting married?

I suggest you two, plus Markie, Opus and stay out of this thread.  It's only for people like me that want to protect and preserve the quality & integrity of the amateur radio service.  People like you, John Smith, Opus, Lenny and Markie want to destroy it because you believe people shouldn't have to learn anything or be good at anything to be a ham radio operator.

SC:

Sometimes I am convinced that you are an excellent "satire comedian." Other times, you have me convinced you are for real. Sometimes you have me busting a gut and laughing until tears come, other times you yank my heart-stings in pity.

Take this last post of your, it can be viewed as tongue-in-cheek satire, or, it can be viewed as insane rant.

Certainly you cannot place much importance on CW. Amateurs have a real purpose, to expand radio on ALL frontiers. Help in the community, help in educating the youth in radio, help in disasters, help in developing techniques, equip., theory development, etc. (the list really goes on-and-on here)

Probably the least important aspects of all this is rag chewing, contesting, favoritism of individuals and groups, etc. They are fun for some and amateur radio has a place for these activities, but these are self-serving and we must be careful least amateurs on a whole end up being judged on such self-serving behaviors. However, when we are taking from amateur radio for our own personal goals, likes and entertainment we are NOT giving. Or, put simply, I can easily imagine Einstein, Tesla, De Forest, Bell, etc. having a great interest in radio, however, I am in doubt as to them getting excited about having to learn morse to obtain the license.

So, when you go crying "the sky is falling" over amateur radio progressing and dropping an ancient tradition of morse testing, how can any logical mind view you as NOT being self-serving, how can anyone take you seriously at all? Are you a con man attempting to sell us the idea that you really see great benefit in CW? That CW is a major part of radio in 2006? Come on man, anyone crying such nonsense is going to be called on those cons schemes immediately.

You see CW as being a real barrier, something that many who desperately want to become amateurs will avoid and by so avoiding fail to obtain an amateur license. Certainly you cannot really believe that; you can see how people would view you as deranged if you held such views, can't you? If someone really wants an amateur license, it they are so devoted to hero worship of amateurs as your were--they will end up with that license in their back pocket--even some uneducated and mentally challenged person from the back swamps of DumbBuck Egypt can learn to tap that code if he/she is driven.

I think as a young man, you viewed amateurs in some form of hero worship. I think you viewed them as larger than life. I am afraid that once you obtained your license, these fantasies did not fade. Indeed, you wove these fantasies into your ego and your ego became dependent on your amateur license hanging on your wall. You recognized that if a very large number of people had amateur licenses (say the same number who hold fishing licenses or drivers licenses or contracting licenses, etc.) your feeling of being "special" would go away. So, you began to plot. You began to find ways you felt would stop people from getting licenses and get behind those ideas and push them and sell them. You certainly knew there were other such individuals as yourself out there and they would come to your aid. Indeed, I do not even think you were the one to come up with the original idea, I think that would have been beyond you. Someone else came up with the idea, you just jumped on his/her bandwagon.

So, now we arrive here. And, you are indeed correct, CW does make some shy away from amateur radio. The reward of having an amateur license is just not big enough for them to learn a set of dits and dahs to send messages with, frankly, I see Einstein never bothered. I guess you look at this as a "winning" situation, I do not. I look at it as a evil self-centered plan which you and others are engaged in to limit amateur radio, and it just kind-of-got-that-way because no one has taken you to task.

I know of no good reasons to maintain any CW requirement in amateur testing. Even learning it for historical reasons does not justify the expenditure of time and effort it requires just to purchase a radio, buy an antenna and grab up a mic (and that is exactly what the large majority of amateurs are today, code tapping appliance users.)

In all your rants I see no real reasons for maintaining the CW requirement. In fact, when you are hard pressed and under attack, you admit to having your self-centered self at the core of you manipulations.

If you think I hate you, I do not. If you think I see you as the most evil person I have ever conversed with, I do not--I have some neighbors much worse. I just don't understand you. And, why that is, is because no one here is attempting to "win" by eliminating morse. We are attempting to win by making amateur radio enticing enough to fill our ranks with new bright minds, something YOU SHOULD place much more importance on. Indeed, CW pales in comparison when viewed side-by-side.

Let me leave you with one important "vision" to dwell upon. Next time you are a social event, a cocktail party, a civic function, etc. and you find someone, or some group who is really, really impressed with you being an amateur radio operator--then, right at that time, take a really, really good look at those people who are so all impressed and tell me if it really matters that you impress "those people?" If you say yes, you and I don't even live in the same universe.

Regards,
JS

Allo mates,

I just purchased a brand spanking new Radio Pro 97. I got it on sale for $149.99. The normal price is $199.99. So I felt this would be a good time to get it.

I have it working fine now off of my rechargeable batteries.

This radio needs a 9 volt, 300 Ma power supply to function correctly.

When I went to look for a power source for it around the house, I discovered that I have three transformers that are 9V 300A, but the plug that goes into the scanner is to large.

I have one power supply that is 9V 800MA and the plug fits perfectly into the scanner. Would thee 500MA more of juice that this power supply allows to pass through be to much for my scanner? Or do I jist need to back to Radio Shack and get an apapter that fits and use my big 273-1667 9V 800MA adpater?
Or better still take the 9Volt 300MA power supply?

Or should I just run it off the 4 AA rechargeable NIMH's that I have?

What is the best option here?

Put another shlimp on the barbee!

You really are a bitter ham. Lack of CW in the radio diet will do that to you.   Just look at all the hate on eleven meters. Those people are even gunning each other down in shopping mall parking lots.

I'm a firm believer in using humor and satire to try to make my point. It's like cracking a walnut with a sledgehammer. Whether or not anyone wants to accept or agree with me, I hope we can all still have a good laugh.

How about, Requiring it in order to be able to communicate with it? That's a good reason and you're learning a skill. Keeping people like Markie off HF doesn't sound too bad either.

The first time you hear 'AAAAAAUDIOOOOOOOOOOOOO' or 'skipland skipland skipland' in the middle of 20meters, you'll get a change of heart and will want to beg forgiveness at the Church of Hiram. I heard it a couple times and it made even the hairs on the back of my neck stand up and I was already born again.

        The 300 ma rating is the max. rating the scanner will draw so you need a p.s. needs to be able to provide that much current.
Your 9v 800ma p.s. will work fine,,, as long as the polarity is correct. The scanner will only draw enough current to work properly.

1st Responder Wireless News, a subsidiary company of 1st Responder News, is considered the leader in the emergency notification industry, sending incident alerts to pagers, cell phones, PDAs and e-mails.

1st Responder Wireless News (1RWN), already very active, and recognized by most media outlets and Public Safety Officials as the "Industry Leader" in most of the East Coast States, is actively looking for News Correspondents to become active as Incident Dispatchers for your area.

1RWN has recently gone live with a new DISPATCHER REWARDS PROGRAM, the most rewarding incentive program in the industry, which will allow our Dispatchers to log into an online store and buy products ranging from cameras to computers to digital scanners to a subscription to our 1st Responder Newspaper to paid membership into one of our 1st Responder Radio Network affiliates (buff groups with 2-way radio coverage and/or photography groups in Long Island, MA, MD, NJ, NYC, PA and VA with more expected soon...), and so much more from over 100+ prizes, by using points earned by being active on our system! EVERY Dispatcher on our system will now reap rewards for their hard work, dedication and loyalty!

We are now active in AL, AZ, CA, CO, CT, DC, DE, FL, GA, HI, IL, IN, KY, LA, MA, MD, ME, MO, MS, NC, NH, NJ, NM, NV, NY, OH, OR, PA, RI, SC, TN, TX, VA, VI, VT, WA, WV and Canada. 1RWN has already acquired many well known Paging Notification Services including TAC-9 Paging, East Coast Paging, Ohio Fire News, Maryland Fire Network, Virginia Fire Net, Toronto Fire Net, Metro Fire Paging and the National Incident News Network (NINN), with several additional under final negotiations. This is a very exciting time to become involved.

1RWN sends instant notifications for any newsworthy Police, Fire, Rescue, Traffic, Weather and Breaking News event within our coverage areas, to pagers, e-mail, cell phones, PDAs and to our online streaming tickers. The vast majority of our Dispatch Staff is comprised of Volunteer and Career Firefighters, Police/Sheriff Officers, Haz-Mat & Rescue Technicians, 911/ALS/Medevac Dispatchers, ALS, BLS & OEM Personnel and Skywarn Spotters, on local, county, state and federal levels.

1RWN has the industry's MOST COMPREHENSIVE Customer Interface selection process which allows our Subscribers to select EXACTLY what information they want to receive, from what areas and to what devices. In other words, you can select to receive JUST building collapse incidents in Yonkers to be sent to your cell phone, with bridge closures in Philadelphia being sent to your pager. You are no longer restricted to receiving ALL alerts from a region, now YOU decide what you receive from the average 16,000 monthly alerts sent from any of the areas we cover - 37 States, Washington DC, or Canada!

If you are interested, or would like more information, please check out the website at www.1RWN.com

What a joke of a system.

Almost all of the other notification networks operate on a volunteer basis for their dispatchers. If a dispatcher is in this HOBBY for rewards, they should seek a job in news media where they pay for those tips.

Also, they aren't very nice to deal with when you have any problems. Before they 'took over' some other groups (read forced them to be bought out), everything was running smoothly. Now, things are awkward at best.

At least I'm a ham. That can't be said of you.

> Lack of CW in the radio diet will do that to Nope, being accused of molesting Boy Scouts did it for me.

Everything that K4YZ/KTN4GN says is suspect and needs to be scrutinized.

For example, his Civil Air Patrol FOUO letter that was published in the Nov 2006 issue of PopComm completely contradicts his QRZ.COM/K4YZ offer to confirm his CAP communications.

That is what this thread is about... if you'd care to stay on topic.

> Just look at all the hate on eleven meters.

I wouldn't know, but there's no need to look there. The hate is already on RRAP, and K4YZ fosters most of it. When this group becomes moderated, I expect K4YZ to be banned. He'll have to hang out on the Nurse or CAP yahoo groups of his own creation and moderation.

What a coincidence. K4YZ has offered to "meet" several hams at the Dayton Hamfest, and there's a lot of hamfest parking at the shopping mall.

He's a product of dumbed down licensing. In schools they call it outcome

The only hate I see, is the hate most everyone here has for the CW test.
But that's about it.  How'd ya like the boy scouts?

OK, finally made it over to Universal and picked up the November issue of PopComm.

Of course Steve's letter was well written. He left out the homosexual inuendo and excrement eating scenarios. He has one side he presents to the world... but then there's the other side.

Anyhow, lots of words, a sense of urgency. With arms waving and flags flying he mentions "jet training routes" "Missions for America" "ultimate war fighting capabilities."   Very important sounding stuff from Major Steven J Robeson, K4YZ/KTN4GN, as usual.

So what was it all about???

Monitoring CAP FOUO communications.

I recall K4YZ/KTN4GN inviting people to monitor him and he would send an SWL confirmation.

Hi! So much for FOUO.

I am an active member of the Tennessee Wing, Civil Air Patrol, United States Air Force Auxiliary with the rank of Major. CAP performs search and rescue, disaster relief and other domestic "civil defense" type missions on behalf of the U. S. Air Force. CAP was organized in the late 1930's and was formally established on 01 December 1941 to provide "homeland defense" type missions, and it continues that proud tradition into the 21st Century.

My Civil Air Patrol callsign is "TennesseeCAP 250". I will QSL utility SWL'ers if you catch me on one of CAP's HF or VHF frequencies.

Innocent of what? Innocent of being a megalomaniac with delusions of grandeur? Hardly. Innocent of having one of the worst balding
"comb-overs" ever seen? Absolutely not.

BTW, if he" monitored their communication channels", do you think he heard them coming to get him? Sure hope so.

What you just said made me curious, so I hit up WWW.QRZ.COM for "Newport" and there are NONE in 4-land. There's one in Washington, two in five-land, and a handful of 'em in Canton, Ohio. His first post was on Oct 10th about "faggortry."

Wait a minute.... Didn't Robesin used to live in Canton, Ohio? Maybe Bob Newport is one of his ex-in-laws or something.

> well, he's down to the level of annoyance

It's got to be incorporated into the exams then, otherwise hams aren't going to learn and do it. If ham radio is to modernize hams must be forced to modernize. CW isn't preventing the modernization of ham radio, Laziness is.

Look at the no-coders on the repeaters. Many of them have been licensed for years and they ain't moderizating. They're no better than they were the day they were first licensed.

The passing score on written exams need to be 85% and double the number of questions on each test element.

I push for quality hams. If you don't like quality there is CB. Let's not turn the ham bands into CB

But YOU said that YOU got fired.  Twice.

From http://www.allaudio.org/detail-11649980.html:

"On Wed, 29 Sep 2004 15:53:47 -0700, Todd Daugherty wrote:

"I am a formal employee of Wal-Mart Stores Inc. I was fired about a month ago by the store manger who at the very beginning did not like me. I called the District Manger who informed me that I wasn't fired and had a long talk with the store manger about him firing me. Upon returning to work that day.
The store manger informed me that all the stockman were going to clean up the fixture room and I was going to be first one. When I asked the other stockman if they were told about cleaning the fixture room they said no.

Since I was hired back I was the only one cleaning out the fixture room. While I was cleaning the fixture room up the store manger was writing me up for not doing my other duties. The store manger along with the assistant manger would nit-pick at everything I do. All of this happen after that one event. As of last Sunday the store manger got his way and fired me again. I am sick of him harassing me."

Slow Idiot:

1) Get a life!
2) Get a news group! (might I suggest rec.radio.amateur.cw? Of course, you will have to found this new group.)

I am sure there are just thousands waiting in the wings to join a newsgroup devoted to cw!

I don't know delorean, was you dropped on the head when you were a child??? because It seems to me that you have a hard time listening.....I was wrong when I posted that, according to Wal-mart and the state of Illinois I was NEVER FIRED.....according to BOTH i quit on my accord...and If I wanted I could go back to work for them...but I am not because I am happy in school.

If that's true, I'm going to quit shopping at Walmart.  I don't want my money going to help Fags.

It IS true. The Snopes urban legend web site has full details at http://www.snopes.com/politics/sexuality/walmart.asp

Now that Miller Brewing donated $30K to the illegal alien marches of this past Summer, and now that Walmart has turned against family values, I've cut off doing business with both companies. Political correctness of that kind is endangering this country, and we have to fight it.

I don't drink miller anyways but no I don't agree with illegal aliens getting made easy for them. If you think about it what are family values? Stating that just because someone isn't Heterosexual that they are a danger to your, kids, family, town, city, county, state, nation?
You ever thought that the havoc you are trying to cause over someone's sexuality?   Ever thought that all the trouble and havoc you are trying to cause over the situation might be the true danger to what is all American, what the United States is all about? One nation indivisible?

Did you even bother to read the material at Snopes? Somehow, I don't think that you did, because you pulled out your prerecorded response immediately after jerking your knee.

I don't give a sh*t about your sexuality, but I do take great exception to the in-your-face promotion of homosexuality that the Gay and Lesbian Alliance is all about. Since Walmart has joined (literally) with them, I now take great exeception to Walmart.

There are a lot more of "us" than there are of homophiles, and Walmart is about to find that out. Walmart backed down from not using the word "Christmas" in their stores, and now they are about to get a second lesson in staying out of social politics. I predict that, by this time next year, Walmart will have dropped out of the Gay and Lesbian Alliance.

Maybe the christians should practice what you have just preached. I take great exception to the bible thumpers knocking on my door and telling me that if I don't join their church, that I'm going to burn in hell. And the onslaught of phone calls telling me that I need to let their god save me. How much more "IN YOUR FACE" can you get.

I have yet to have a homo get in my face and tell me I'd better bend over and get sodomized, or else.

Did YOU even bother to read what was written at Snopes?

The only money going back to GLBT was what was sold via the link from the GLBT websites, NOT from any other Wal-Mart store or online Wal-Mart sales. That sort of thing is done all the time, just like rebates from Discover card. It's a tool designed to boost sales. Period.

Either a troll or somebody who REALLY hates ham radio. Must be a troll, just look at his behavior here. Off-topic messages are just as bad as transmitting on an unauthorized frequency, something a QUALITY ham would not do. Blurts out insults when asked to back up anything he says, proving beyond a shadow of a doubt that he doesn't give a rats ass about ham radio then continues to pollute off-topic newsgroups.

SC is the type not welcome amongst good ham radio operators. He is just a simple obvious troll who is out to kill ham radio by making ham radio operators look so awful. A REAL ham would never act like such a boor.

Just a simple troll who knows nothing about radios in general nor knows how to use one properly. He has proven it himself.

        Did you read it??  It said that it is "partnering" with the GLA to "promote diversity" and promote non typical gay marriages. Everytime I hear that buzz phrase "promote diveristy" I can feel the little hairs on my neck standing up, because what that really means is promoting non traditional values. Since I have a SuperWalmart within a stones throw of me, its going to be difficult not to go there but this tears it with me and no doubt hundreds of thousands or more of us lowly tradiionalists that happen to believe not only do words mean things but so do actions like this. They really are sticking their noses where they dont belong,,, no pun intended, and I think they are going to get bit in the long run.

What the HELL   has this newsgroup become the dumping grounds for every crackpot in the world ?
who gives a shit about Walmart, I don't buy scanners there, get frequencies there, or antenna's there.

Why don't you mental midgets take all this CRAP about Walmart, gays, ham radio, CW and all the other political horsecrap to the REC.I'm_an_idiot   newsgroup   and let the rest of us have OUR group back so we can carry on discussions about things that we joined this group in the first place.

I've got about 4 people 'filtered', I guess I can add alot more

Of course you are correct. But also unfortunately almost all news groups are rapidly becoming socio-politcal-BS. About all you can do is killfile the people who constantly post this crap, and maybe all those that respond. But then you end up with a handful of people left who arent killfiled.

The trouble with a code is that it is designed to keep people out. Once you've learned the 'secret' code, it makes you feel that you have something that you, and a select group of others can participate in.

Once you're up there, see how quickly you pull the ladder up.

Does a proficiency in CW make for a better operator? Yes, in a way. It shows a studious interest in the hobby and is a worth achievement but does it make a more courtious or interesting operator? Certainly not, and this group is witness to that.

"People who don't use code are lazy", What? Is that the only discipline available to allow someone to experiment with radio? Absolutely not!

How about learning electronics and building your own equipment? Is that a lesser or a greater achievement?

How about taking the hobby forward by progressing and leading cutting edge technologies? It was after all the amateur fraternity who brought this new fangled SSB phone mode. Were are at the dawn of a new digital age on all you people can do is look backwards and remain firmly rooted in the seventeenth century.

Come on, wake up and smell the 21st century.

There is a 3rd option  that I'm testing,  you can filter key words or phrases. If a message contains these words its filtered like you could filter all messages that contain "Boycott Walmart" no matter who sends them, but if that person wants to post something 'normal' it comes thru. Naturally  Slow Code and Markie are permently killfiled, but I think this filter system once set up ( which might take a little while) should work good    :)

SSB is a period stain on the panties of radio communication. I hate SSB. I prefer narrowband FM, or AM even, for quality and lack of annying squawk. Baudot RTTY is fun too.

Make people build something to get the General license and make them show competence to where a two way or broadcast facility would hire them for the Extra.

The accusations that George Fetter defrauded people on the Internet is false. There were a couple of packages lost during shipment (with UPS/USPS tracking numbers), but the reason for the US governments false flag operation against George is because he monitored their communication channels.

Can anyone help me with my decision on what Police Scanner to purchase? I almost purchased a Radio Shack Handheld Scanner until I realized it was an analog Scanner. No Good for me. I'm really new to the Scanner Thing and NEED some expert advice. I need to know what the name of a good unit (Handheld perferably) and where to purchase it from. But since I'm a newbie, any information would be greatly appreciated. THANK YOU IN ADVANCE FOR ANY INFO SENT.

Well, instead of a year, it only took Wal-mart a few days to back away from their preposterous position. A threatened boycott seemed to do the trick, just as I suggested in a previous post. Wal-mart is all about profit; not principle, and they'll sell out at the drop of a hat. The relevant excerpt is as follows:

"While stressing its commitment to diversity and equality, Wal-Mart (WMT) said in its statement that it "will not make corporate contributions to support or oppose highly controversial issues unless they directly relate to our ability to serve our customers."

"Mona Williams, Wal-Mart's vice president of communications, said in a telephone interview that the company would continue working with the Gay and Lesbian Chamber of Commerce and other gay-rights groups on specific issues such as workplace equality."

"Going forward, we would partner with them on specific initiatives. ... As to opposed to just giving blanket support to their general operating budget," she said. -- http://www.foxnews.com/story/0,2933,231259,00.html

See there? Stick up for traditional values, and these people cave in and run away. It's one more win for the good guys. We've got Christmas back at Wal-mart and gay marriage support is out on its derriere.

I love it when a plan comes together.

go to http://www.radioreference.com and look up the systems you want to monitor to see if you require digital capable scanner. The best radio for the money for digital and analog is the BCD396T or 996T available at http://www.usascan.com/files/scanners.html

I don't know why the owner is advertising a digital camera on the digital scanner page, but don't order that! The price includes shipping.

Wal-mart managers are mostly all cowards anyways and they fuck liars to boot. Wal-mart should be force out of business for the good of US women who they cheat regular on wages and promotions.

It's because there is a special savings if it is ordered in conjunction with any of the scanners on the page...

Seems I read in the paper a couple days ago that it cost about $25,000 to join and they donated another $60,000.   Anyway, it was EIGHTY-FIVE GRAND!!!  I'm not sure the exact way it was allocated. . . but it's probably on the net.

Remember K-Mart and their ownership of some porn producing or selling shop?  Currently out of bankruptcy, I think, but a lot weaker!

Remember Winn-Dixie who just got out of bankruptcy?  They came out of bankruptcy minus many thousands of employees, about 400 stores plus warehouses and other assets! Oh, I still don't know if they have a policy of calling the law upon seeing a parent correct a child according to the Bible!

Wal-Mart probably thinks they are "too big" to be brought down a notch or two, but notice what the Bible says. Isiah 40:15, "Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance: behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing." KJV

Note: The NATIONS are basically nothing to God - much less one business within one of those nations. I suspect "nations" can be taken individually or collectively!   :-)

There was a time when Wal-Mart stock was splitting pretty frequently but I can't see it growing very much lately.

Mark, you cannot expect others to take you with a grain of salt if you don't expend the energy in a grain of salt to express yourself. You expect others to stoop to your level of comprehension. Why can't you elevate your level of expression to that of the rest of the world?

At present, you are doing the "crappie flop"....flopping around on the deck with no purpose, and expecting the rest of the world to figure out your intended meaning.

why not and why do you deserve any effort on my part you lack evn the basic cowarge to give you name and all you dseem to snip at people or talk badly off topic

Thanks for the info Allen, I was a regular monitor a few years ago (from Australia) and have a small collection of recordings from 261.950 MHz if I remember, some ICE flights and traffic from a military exercise on Guam (I think) from a few years ago - was using a discone and an Icom R7100 - will check out your antenna as I'm hoping to get back into it.

Allen,

I've heard some Spanish 2-way conversations on 263.825 NFM at around 9:30 AM from my location in NE Ohio. This was using my PRO-43 and 220 Mhz Ham Band rubber duck without a preamp!

It won't be that bad, a lot of no-coders will uprade. Only the sick, lame, and lazy will get out and flood eBay with ham gear, but since the sick, lame and lazy are like CB'ers we don't want them in the amateur service anyway. They aren't motivated enough to improve it, or themselves.

If you don't care what the radio bands sound like, then you're probably a loser that wants to see code to go away. You don't care if hams are valuable. But if you do care about ham radio, you'll help me promote importance of have good operators.

So what's it going to be with you people? Quality hams? or Lids?

Markie ignore this thread, we already know you want more lids.

11 meter DX runs like diarrhea, but that's to be expected. Shitty operators make a service shitty.

In google advanced search, where is says author. type in 'kb9rqz' or type in 'an old friend'  and you get all the proof you need.

Good luck with it. :) We love helping people that want to good hams get a license. That's a good point on learning CW. As you get better and faster at it, you don't hear individual letters, you hear and your mind memorizes the sound of whole words.

Markie will probably flame you for wanting to learn CW, but just ignore Markie, he's a retard.

"assnate me?"   Is that like getting aids from anal sex and dying from it?

No Markie, I'm not queer, I won't assnate you.  You need to talk to Woger

Mike,

Xnews is what I use too and I don't have any problems with off topic posts or cross-posts anymore.  Tnx, 73, Good luck on the Code test.

So he finally got tired of sticking it up your ass. Well good for him. How's your CW practice coming along, are you going for a license too or are you too lazy and stupid to be a ham?

Umm, no. There are two radio items in the ad; here's what I sent to the DXLD Yahoo group:

Hi, all!
Got a Thanksgiving sale flyer from Radio Shack yesterday in which they list their special sale items for that day and the following weekend. On the Friday/Saturday/Sunday page they list the analog-tuning AM/FM/SW crank-up radio with flashlight and cellphone charger #20-238 at $19.99; this one has the RS name and not Eton on it, and the cosmetics are different from the Eton models. Regular price is $39.99.

There is also a handheld scanner #20-528 at $99.99 (regular $169.99); they don't mention what the model # is, not give any details of the frequency coverage, but they do say it is "Triple-Trunking" and has 1000 channels.

For what it's worth...

73, Will

Hi,

Anyone know anything about: SHARES (SHARED RESOURCES EMERGENCY SERVICES) ?

Looked in Google, but couldn't find much; what there was, wasn't all that informative.
e.g.

- who/what they are ?
- frequencies and modes used ?
- much traffic on ?

I'm re-posting this because Markie took a crap on it last time and some of you might have gotten confused.

Step 1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

Step 2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Step 3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Step 4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

Tnx, 73, Good luck in the contest.

Good choice for newsgroup on this. CB'ers like to be illegal. I'm sure some CB'er will buy it up can keep 11 meters sounding shitty and then probably end up dead in a shootout at some shopping mall parking lot somewhere.

No, No, No. I'm full of love. If I didn't care for you people I wouldn't post help tips to inspire you all to be better radio amateurs and assets to our radio service. I'm here to lead and guide everyone to a higher level Ham-dom.

Now, many of you are like alcoholics and until you realize you all need help, you're not going to let me help you. But that's OK, I don't mind pointing out everyone's faults & deficiencies. It's actually quite fun.

It's like watching cockroaches scurry from the light.

If KB9RQZ had to send readable and understandable message with a digital mode to save your life, you would die.

 The PRO-95 is a analog voice trunked radio capable scanner, while the PRO-96 is a analog and digital voice trunked radio capable scanner.

I have been wanting an emergency scanner for some time, but have not purchased one mainly because of cost, and not really knowing what is a good scanner that won't cost much.

I have the opportunity to buy a scanner from a friend and would like an opinion on if it is good or not. I live in a small rural Wisconsin town so I'm not sure if that matters with quality of scanner vs. frequencies. That said, the scanner my friend has is a UNIDEN BEARCAT 855XLT SCANNER for $49.95. Should I, or shouldn't I buy it?

Most likely it is a bad choice, depending on what you want to listen to, and where you're located.

The BC855-XLT is a basic scanner for conventional analog systems. Most public safety has at the very least upgraded to what is called trunking systems, which require a trunktracking type scanner. The current trend is APCO-25, which means it is a digital system, and requires a scanner that is capable of receiving a digital system. (Not to be confused with a "Digital Scanner", which can mean only that the scanner has a digital display, vs. the older dial type tuner).

So to start with, what County/City/State are you in?

Well you're in luck! It appears that scanner will work for your needs. You must live in some small rural area?

Rhinelander:

FIRE: 155.055 MHz
POLICE: 155.250 MHz

Oneida County:

FIRE: 154.445 MHz
FIRE GROUND: 154.355 MHz
SHERIFF: 154.725 MHz
SHERIFF CAR-to-CAR: 155.640 MHz
EMS: 155.805 & 155.340 MHz

It's not a trunked system, nor is it digital. Just plain old conventional analog. So just about any scanner radio made should be able to receive those frequencies. Radio Shack has a few on sale right now, and a better sale taking place on Black Friday. So you might want to take a look at theirs too. They have both base/mobile, and hand-held units.

Hello all, I'm new to the group and I live in the tampa bay area. I have been listening to satcom for the past few years now and have really got some nice intercepts from the satellites. right now I listen to the 90 west satellite and the 105 west satellite. I first started out using a discone and found out that it did not provide and gain what so ever. when I was at Macdill airforce base and saw the antennas that central command was using, I said I want one of those. I did some research on how to build one. I went to the local hardware store to buy everything I needed. I built myself a 7 turn helix centered at 260mhz and I use a cable tv pre-amp on it as well. I have got some excellent results from it and the signal comes in crystal clear. I can hear several of the fleet relay transponders and clear comms, pirates talking and some russian phone relays. below is a list of my logs that I have monitored today.

265.550 NFM sounds like PSK
250.350 NFM Fleet Relay
250.550 NFM Fleet Relay
262.125 NFM Data/ Nightstalker Ops

I'm re-posting this because Markie took a crap on it last time and some of you might have gotten confused.

Step 1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

Step 2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Step 3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Step 4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

Tnx, 73, Good luck in the contest.

Imagine what step #4 would do to two meter HT sales. The no-coders would be selling them on Ebay at a record rate. Or selling them to fellow CBers.
Of course there is the added benefit of not having our local two meter repeaters jammed up with no-coders telling one another, "You are full quieting here.." (DUH??)
Simplex two meter freqs will be safe, however. Most no-coders don't know what simplex is.

Hi Lardass no coder NOVFP Lloyd Davies. When are you going to upgrade your license, after the code requirement is dropped? NO! You're too stupid to pass the written part too!

Oh BTW, try eating a salad every now and then instead of all that pizza you delivery boy lardass loser.

"Says" he never saw them.

Perhaps he should make the effort to review some before having more normal relations with K4YZ.

Wouff Hong ???
Rettysnitch ???
WTF are we in the 19th Century here???
Baaaaaaaaa hahahahhahahahahhahaha!!!!!!!

Jeezus H Christmas on a rocket powered sled at the Nevada test site will you OBSOLETE hams PLEASE join the 21st century.

I mean consider that the terms Wouff Hong and Rettysnitch DO NOT even appear ANYPLACE on or within Wikipedia!

That alone should tell you something! (..of course now you can be some crusty old fart, cloistered ham radio nerd or some asshole who took the "Bash Book" route to get his ham license will now dash up and create an entry in Wikipaeda just to inflate his own ego and asscheeks and claim he did something.....go ahead, be my guest! In the meantime I'm heading back to 20 Meters to have some fun with the contest freaks. I made up a callsign and semi-rare section and these CLOWN-testers are beating a path to my speaker to work me just so they can see their callsign in print in some half-ass magazine from CT.   How F-N pathetic!) ---> PFHBLTTT!!!!!!!!

ps: you should have seen how many DX clowntesters I duped a few weeks ago using a "creative" callsign, section and running 10 watts into the 40M dipole instead of the beam...suckers!

I tend to believe that right before you die in a fire is as bad as it can get, but that's just me. "Assnated"....just exactly what is that? Is that like when a big fat girl with a smelly butt tries to smother you to death?

Well, I'm excited about learning code.  I have been given some great websites for practice.  And I'm going to try to test in January 2007.
I don't know if I can be ready that quick - but I'm going to give it a shot.  Also, I have been encouraged  by several hams to learn the sounds as complete thoughts instead of learning just letter recognition.  A bit like learning to read, I guess - so I will try that method.  Thanks for the hints.

It's irrelevant.  The code requirement is going away soon.  Then what will you bitch about?

You know, CW may be obsolete, but having to learn the code instilled a bit of discipline and sense of purpose in getting a ham license. Of course things like mathematics, science and such that require mental discipline are no longer politically correct so are generally not required in education today because we certainly don't want to bruise anyone's ego or tax their MTV indoctrinated brains. So, I guess the code will have to go.

It isn't so much the "code" being removed which has dumbed it down, it used to be you "had" to know electronics to get a license. Blame it on the Study Guides which really don't teach SHIT.

Personally, instead of seeing this CODE argument going on forever and not solving a damned thing, using the above post of the other necessities of life - if you intend to get anywhere - let's argue - and understandably so and more welcome than the code argument - why the classes are being dumbed down for our kids! Around here, the schools are wanting to build near professional sports arenas and I'm speaking "millions of dollars" - for the "Football" games - to hell with the studies. They "used" to give you basic supplies when you went to school, now you buy your own. The "School Board" seats are more hotly contested than some of the "State and Local" government seats. Yet the education level isn't improving.
No child left behind? Eh, not if they're foot ball players. IF NOT - they're screwed.

Just my 2 cents.

I know this is getting OT, but I agree. Ever see the stats on what the school board people and administrators get paid compared to teachers?
Ever look at the ratio of school board administrative staff to teachers? In New York some years ago investigative reporting indicated that there were approximately 7 administrators per teacher and most had "company" cars. Now we know where the money goes and why real education doesn't matter.

Regarding testing for a ham license, I think that is a good idea. I just think we should be testing for skills that show some ability by the operator to set up and operate a rig safely. And we should test his ability to communicate effectively and courteously in a widely used form of communication that can be understood by emergency responders: voice.

I don't know about your area, but mine has two distinct tracks for kids. Those that are headed for a college education receive various levels of advanced classes based on ability (more or less). Those that are on the vocational track receive math and english at a level to get them past NCLB requirements and the equivalent of shop classes. The stadiums are for the most part outdoor with bleachers looking over a multipurpose playing field that has a running track around it. And this is one of the higher income areas of the country.

I do agree that sports in high school and college can be taken to absurd levels of importance. In many locations, especially urban ones the high school is essentially a farm club for colleges which are a farm club for major league sports. I would love to see the system taken back several notches but there is too much money at stake for that to happen.

Regarding the "education". They teach "some" college level prep classes. As to those with lesser ambition/grades, they have "classes" - period. There is "Vo Tech" - but you had to have a certain grade average to get in "there". As to shop, one school I know of - sold all their shop equipment years ago - that being the same school "I" went to and got my start in electronics training. I've never heard much of other schools having "shop" class around here. The "stadiums" at some of these schools here reach into the "millions" of dollars, upping the taxes on all who live there. Those stadiums are damned close to being equivalent to a "Pro" Field. Hell, our local "state" University doesn't even match some of them. That is pathetic. Yes, kids need sports to teach sportsmanship and competition, but come on - "EDUCATION" being "reading, writing, arithmatic" and so on are more important. AND as I said, they fight for school board seats hotter than some local and state government races. It is "sickening".

They've eliminated the "Wood, Electronics, Metal (including welding) and Electrical" shops here. Now, I realize "Electronics" may not be as hot to some as it once was, but it still has value in our country. So too does "Electrical" systems/wiring, "Welding", etc. Do we not need "skilled" labor anymore? No wonder this country is going to hell. Pretty soon all other countries will out smart us in every field. Those who were pushing "no child left behind" - need to get things back on track for "develpment" of "marketable" skills."
We're still going to need things wired, welded, soldered, electronics to mainain the "cell phone craze" and so on.

I realize most parents are working and unlike the past - at least one parent made sure we did our chores, studying and so on..... things have changed dramatically. They need to change dramatically again. Get these kids interested in something. Even computers seem to be falling out of grace with a lot of them - aside from chatting. I guess they equate computers to "work".

> The whole point of my original post is that Black Friday sales can be excellent opportunities to get a great item (computer, game machine, television, etc) at a fraction of its original price. All the top retailers do Black Friday promotions: Wal-Mart, Sears, Best Buy, Circuit City, Target, Kmart, Radio Shack, etc. And since Radio Shack sells scanners and shortwave radios, sometimes Black Friday lets me can get a great scanner or a great radio at a great price.

The Black Friday website for Radio Shack shows a Pro-528 scanner listed at $169 on sale for $99,

Definition of Political Correctness:

A doctrine fostered by a delusional, illogical liberal minority, and rabidly promoted by an unscrupulous old media, which holds forth the proposition that it is entirely possible to pick up a turd by the clean end.

Right, That why there is CB. You don't have to know how it works you just get on it and act stupid. We can't have ham radio be like that, we want skill. Quality, not quantity.

I know a lot of you don't like that because it means more work, but we get a higher quality operator.

Definition of Political Correctness:

A doctrine fostered by a delusional, illogical liberal minority, and
rabidly promoted by an unscrupulous old media, which holds forth the proposition that it is entirely possible to pick up a turd by the clean end.
///////////////////////////////////

Hmmmmmmmmm

Not unlike what Katie Couric and Matt Lauer do on a daily basis. Or, for that matter, what CBS, NBC, ABC, and CNN do daily.
When a Republican goes awry, the Media plasters it on Page One. When a drunken Democrat does so, the Media lauds the Democrat for "getting help" and calls it a "Courageous Step."
Chappaquiddick, anybody? Mary Jo Kopechne ring any bells?
Now, when it comes to "picking up a turd by the clean end", which end would that put Senator Kennedy on?

Available here before it goes off to ebay..

I've got a NEW in the box Uniden 330T portable trunking scanner.. Everything is in the box! Picked this up and decided the digital scanner was the one I wanted (needed). The one has been out of the box for only a few days, never off the desk here. Included also is Butel's ARC330 programming / visual scanner software for this unit. This is the "basic" version of the software and was purchased by me so you'll get the activation key with it in its original case.

I'm looking at $225 shipped / insured to your door.
I accept paypal and have feedback on ebay at cabletek73. Shipping is done daily. (except Sunday ofcourse).

E-mail if interested.
Thanks!

Yes he does, he has: Lloyd, Woger, Lenny, U-Know-Who, Hot-Ham-and-Cheese, RadioGuy, all the CB'ers in the CB groups, and now your dumb ass.

Get used to the QRM, because after CW is eliminated you're going to wish your rig did come with Rettysnitch and wouff hong filters...

But I forget, due to the lack of support for good tests a lot of you people must like hearing Lids.

Let's not ever give Markie or any other Markies that are like Markie HF.

Your life may depend on it.

FBI investigates illegal reception of radio transmissions, this includes

cell phones etc

However the FCC DOES  'regulate' receivers......   look on ANY radio and see the "FCC type approved' sticker on it.  ANY radio must be 'approved' by the FCC before it can be sold in the USA

To insure that the oscillator in the radio doesn't transmit those oscillations beyond a certain distance from the receiver. The FCC will never tell anyone what they can or can't listen to. The airwaves are "FREE" and anyone can listen to anything that they want. The problem only comes when you repeat what you hear on police frequencies. Plus unscramblers are not receivers, only an audio accessory to a receiver. The Feds only investigate people SELLING modified receivers for cell phones, not the buyers.

The air waves are not "FREE" anymore if that were true scanners would still be sold with cell coveraqge

And its the communications act of 1996

(g) It shall not be unlawful under this chapter or chapter 121 of this title for any person--

(i) to intercept or access an electronic communication made through an electronic communication system that is configured so that such electronic communication is readily accessible to the general public;

(ii) to intercept any radio communication which is transmitted--

(I) by any station for the use of the general public, or that relates to ships, aircraft, vehicles, or persons in distress;

(II) by any governmental, law enforcement, civil defense, private land mobile, or public safety communications system, including police and fire, readily accessible to the general public;

(III) by a station operating on an authorized frequency within the bands allocated to the amateur, citizens band, or general mobile radio services; or

(IV) by any marine or aeronautical communications system;

(iii) to engage in any conduct which--

(I) is prohibited by section 633 of the Communications Act of 1934; or

(II) is excepted from the application of section 705(a) of the Communications Act of 1934 by section 705(b) of that Act;

(iv) to intercept any wire or electronic communication the transmission of which is causing harmful interference to any lawfully operating station or consumer electronic equipment, to the extent necessary to identify the source of such interference; or

(v) for other users of the same frequency to intercept any radio communication made through a system that utilizes frequencies monitored by individuals engaged in the provision or the use of such system, if such communication is not scrambled or encrypted.

(4)(a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this subsection or in subsection (5), whoever violates subsection (1) of this section shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

(b) If the offense is a first offense under paragraph (a) of this subsection and is not for a tortious or illegal purpose or for purposes of direct or indirect commercial advantage or private commercial gain, and the wire or electronic communication with respect to which the offense under paragraph (a) is a radio communication that is not scrambled, encrypted or transmitted using modulation techniques the essential parameters of which have been withheld from the public with the intention of preserving the privacy of such communication, then--

(i) if the communication is not the radio portion of a cellular telephone communication, a cordless telephone communication that is transmitted between the cordless telephone handset and the base unit, a public land mobile radio service communication or a paging service communication, and the conduct is not that described in subsection (5), the offender shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both;

Hmmm   sounds like the FCC (federal law) IS telling you what you can and

Do you know what "not be unlawful" means? It means it is legal to:

(i) "It is legal to" to intercept or access an electronic communication made through an electronic communication system that is configured so that such electronic communication is readily accessible to the general public;

(ii) " It is legal to" intercept any radio communication which is transmitted--

"direct or indirect commercial advantage or private commercial gain" Does not apply to any average "Joe" listening to a radio and not scheming to make a buck from what he hears!

Hmmm sounds like you need a little legal refresher course.  The Germans did not win WWII, by the way.  The airwaves are still free as you posted in the previous post.  Get a reality check and take a nap before your "feeding frenzy" causes you to stroke-out!

I was in my neighborhood drug store and what did I see? The November issue of pop com!

Steve, your letter was well written and spot on.Congratulations on being published! Have you ever considered submitting regular articles to either pop com or monitoring times? You have great writing skills.

Dear Sirs ,

We are members of a Children's Radio Club and we are pleased to say that we use some of your devices.

I would like to ask you to help me in the repairs of radioscanner AR16B (Ser.#050634).

We have the following problems.

1.. In all modulation modes when buttons "Start", "Func", "Moni" are pressed all the readings in the display disappear.
2.. NFM mode does not work. S-meter shows the presence of the signal but there is no sound in the loud speaker even when the "Moni" button is pressed.
In WFM and AM modes everything works OK besides the defect indicated in item 1.

What element's might not work properly?

Could you possibly send me the schematic diagram of AR16B?

How made reset processor of AR16B ?

Thank you in advance.

Respectfully yours,

Sergey V. Martynov.

Sarov , Russia.

your a riot

READ the wording and use your head and common sense when reading it

IT SAYS :
(v) for other users of the same frequency to intercept any radio communication made through a system that utilizes frequencies monitored by individuals engaged in the provision or the use of such system, if such communication is not scrambled or encrypted.

Yep its LEGAL ...... IF communications ARE NOT ENCRYPTED or SCRAMBLED

John   I think your HOPELESS   you read into things WHAT YOU WANT THEM TO BE .... not what they are.

If the airwaves were 'free' there would NOT be any laws governing their RECEPTION
but there is   (cell phones, cordless phones, pagers etc) You need to read the NEW communications laws since 1934 (it has been added to and things have changed since then ...... but since your still concerned about WWII (which was 60+ years ago)) New things seem to elude you.

ok  you have convinced me you're a RETARD

The conversation wasn't  'its only a crime if your caught'. It was about WHAT IS THE LAW and I don't see any Attorny prefix in front of your name.
You jump from one subject to another to suit  your arguement and convice people you 'know what your talking about' Unfortunatly YOU DON"T .

Man are you wrong about the prices. The Boston Accoustics HD radio they are selling for $399.00 I can get one at an electronics store on line for $224 with a $100 plus cut and a $75 rebate, making the final price $224. Man what a rip-off. Their prices come no where near to prices you can get at the large electronic discount houses. But you have to search for these bargains, and they're are worth. I agree with the guy who said their salesman know nothing about electronics. They give you a strange look when you ask them simple basic questions.
So long Radio Shack!

I don't see any Attorny prefix in front of your name, wtf is an "attorny prefix".  How old are you, 12?

I know you're right. Requiring good operators will kill the service.

Hams just want to be appliance operators these days and they don't want license exams that will interfere with them getting to those appliances even though it means being less skilled. I don't see anyone modernizing like everyone says is happening. They just get their licenses and grab a microphone. What percentage of hams have a computer connected to a radio? Probably less than 30%. Hams don't want to modernize. Guess we just have live with inferior operators on the bands from here on out. Then again, maybe hams shouldn't be required to be knowledgable or have skills. Requiring skills and knowledge is too old skool. Everything must be outcome based these days, even licensing. It ain't like we have to help out in emergencies or anything. It's Quantity, not quality. We need more hams even if they aren't skilled.

I'd actually prefer to take the cattle prod away from you, shove it in your ass sideways, then shove it in your mouth and tape the switch closed.

Steve wrote a thought provoking article about the American public's right to monitor government radio transmissions verses responsiable actions on the part of radio hobbiest.

I can't understand the fruit's hatred toward that man..............he seems like a good ham and a generally good guy.

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. If you organize or join a public demonstration against Iraq, or against the administration, the same designation could befall you. One dark-comedy aspect of the legislation is that senators or House members who publicly disagree with Bush, criticize him, or organize investigations into his dealings could be placed under the same designation. In effect, Congress just gave Bush the power to lock them up." -- William Rivers Pitt

"It has become clear in recent months that a critical mass of the American people have seen through the lies of the Bush administration; with the president's polls at an historic low, growing resistance to the war Iraq, and the Democrats likely to take back the Congress in mid-term elections, the Bush administration is on the ropes. And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

http://www.radioworld.co.uk/~radio/c...na-p-4098.html

220 Mhz Ham Band Rubber Duck. Does a great job in the 225-400 Mhz range.
I've even heard some 260 Mhz FM MILSATS with this antenna!

Price for both is $35.00 shipped in CONUS

Cash or money order only (no paypal).....

Ah, no, you're failing to recognise that some homo/biphobe in RRAP is frogging Mark to make him look worse than he is (a winner of the Golden Killfile, for July/August 2006, due to his extreme dullness), solely because Mark is a (dyslexic) bisexual who won't keep it secret, so as not to make all the secret homo- and bisexuals in that froup uncomfortable.

"Consider that language a moment. 'Purposefully and materially supported hostilities against the United States' is in the eye of the beholder, and this administration has proven itself to be astonishingly impatient with criticism of any kind. The broad powers given to Bush by this legislation allow him to capture, indefinitely detain, and refuse a hearing to any American citizen who speaks out against Iraq or any other part of the so-called 'War on Terror.'

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. If you organize or join a public demonstration against Iraq, or against the administration, the same designation could befall you. One dark-comedy aspect of the legislation is that senators or House members who publicly disagree with Bush, criticize him, or organize investigations into his dealings could be placed under the same designation. In effect, Congress just gave Bush the power to lock them up." -- William Rivers Pitt

And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

Mark would make everyone in my neighborhood "uncomfortable." It is more how he would disgust them to death that I would worry about though.

Now, I am unsure of the number of men who would enjoy a nice brandy and discussion with mark about how to establish proper manners, education and providing good role models for our developing teens--so their lives are given the "best possible chance" of being enjoyable, stable, sane, and with fewest possible hazards to traverse; but, I would NOT.

Frankly, it would make me uncomfortable!

No offense, but I don't see the other HAM related postings...  All that off-topic crap is filtered out by my newsreader...  Sorry, I didn't mean to make you feel like I was singling you out, I just don't see the other crap, well discomfort is good for you at times indeed that is the basic arguement of the ProCoders discomfort shakes up the comfortable prejuedges and makes one think that is always disconcerting to some poeple

Good point!   An excellent example of the above is Trinity Broadcasting Network or "TBN" as it is called.
Right now it's their 'pledge week' where they have the unmitigated gaul to ask for people to send them $100 or $200 or $500 or $1000 because "Jesus wants you to sow your seed faith gift and receive a FINANCIAL BLESSING in return...." What a load of vine-ripened horse shi+ !

You have to admit however that TBN does know how to rake in the cash from all those people living in trailer parks all across America! I mean they got the overweight sweaty black preacher man, the tall & good looking white guy in the $700 suit, the short blond haired 'golden boy' preacher who is concerned about America and finally the fat bitch in the OUTRAGEOUS HAIRDOO complete with mascara that runs down her face when she cries the blues 'about the chill-drens'.

Couple all of this with a blues band and a sound stage backdrop that looks like the inside lobby of a New Orleans Whorehouse
1 block off of Bourbon St and you got all the makings of a TRUE GENUINE AMERICAN WHITE TRASH moneymaking machine for Jay-zeeeeus!! (Praize da Laaawwwwwddddddd Y'all!!)

--> AND ALL WE GOT ON SHORTWAVE IS FREAKIN BROTHER STAIR !

I mean folks....I could just shit a brick.    :)

I quit PopComm after my 1st subscription about 1984.  Too much reverence for pirate radio for my taste in that pub.

Markie hates everyone that's better than he is, so that means the only friends he's got on the internet are Lloyd, Woger, Lenny, U-Know-Who, Hot-Ham-and-Cheese, RadioGuy, and everyone in the CB group.

Do you go by little-piss-ant on CB too?

Really, CB is a dead-end street, if you want to process further than the rules allow, you have to be illegal. On ham radio you can do lots of things legally. Learn CW, make something of your self. Don't be a loser all your life.

On Tue, 14 Nov 2006 05:48:34 -0800, John Smith sat in thee Comfee Chaire, and didst finally confess, after taking Muche Tea:

Only the closet cases and the repressed ones would feel "uncomfortable". Everyone(tine) else would be okay with it, because only the former two types might have any reason to feel that way. Sexuality is perfectly normal, and those who are secure in their own aren't uncomfortable with anyone(tina) else having a different one.

> Now, I am unsure of the number of men who would enjoy a nice brandy and discussion with mark about how to establish proper manners, education and providing good role models for our developing teens--so their lives are given the "best possible chance" of being enjoyable, stable, sane, and with fewest possible hazards to traverse; but, I would NOT.

Oh, well, in that case, I'd best inform you that I'm bisexual, too. Nor do I hide it. Nor am I the only queer kookologist, though there are many straight ones.

Hail Eris!
Demon Prince of Absurdity

"And no, I did not have sex with my son. But if I did I certainly wouldn't tell you. Something so beautiful and precious should be kept private." -- Kathy L. Mosesian, or possibly not really her, confesses she may be a liar and committer of incest with her own son, in MID:
<cfcd3f4660694e3afeaadaa2723e9ab1@msgid.frell.theremailer.net>

The reporter asked Colin Powell (or George Bush), "What proof do you have that Iraq has weapons of mass destruction?"
He replied, "We kept the receipts." -- Bill Hicks

"They thought I was fair game. I was an instrument of purpose to achieve their desires and not 100 percent real and ALSO that they had me by the short curlies because I thought that the world revolved around them and therefore I think that I am fair game and rightly so. If they want to play dirty, I get to too. It's not a one-way street. I will use the physcial strength that I have over them, my superior 5'7-3/4" height advantage, the boxing moves I paid to learn, the suprise of pussyfooting up to them with their back to me in a public place 18 1/2 years after the fact and thus not only do will they not know that I am but a pica's distance away from them, but that I even exist on earth." -- Chris Tsao is secretly John Wentzky's psychic twin. MID:
<1161246083.152300.195760@m73g2000cwd.googlegroups.com>

Looney Maroon nominee for August 2006 Johnny D Wentzky foamed:
"You never asked someone who goes into areas of the internet that are only for adults who has an underage id somehow or another if they are a cop posing as an underage person online?
I guess lots of people just don't watch dateline or read stories much.
Why don;t you go to pervertedjustice,com and see what they do. They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they lied to membners of the public.

They are awash in their self-proclaimed glory after they posed as an underage person and agreed to do all sorts of sex acts wioth adult males, and they are adults posing as teenager themselves. They make themsleves into liars by falsely impersonating underage persons and by not fuilfilling the words they tell the victims online in their chats.
Why don't you read it where they tell these victims of their deceit about how they have been with grown men and such? Why don't you read it where they say, "That would be cool." after someone makes an advance towards an adult who is posing as a teenager? And, where they agree to meet the person, etc.
Lost control, didn't you?
Is that why you feel as if you need to lie so much now? I see where lots of these false impersonation games are not sticking. They feel as if they can lie and then order the victims to get counseling in the gayblade, governmental, pro-choice tax leech counseling centers. They are doing nothing more than usury and fraud in many cases." -- Wentzky almost comes out of the closet as a pedo/ephebophile in MID:

One can always tell it's a froggery because Mark's blog is deliberately misnamed, and "Gav" is obviously Wabbit. Given such obvious sock-puppetry, would any of my colleagues care to investigate further, and possibly make an OotHS nom? I would, but this is another award that I've already covered.

"Immorality: The morality of those who are having a better time." -- H. L. Mencken

"Consider that language a moment. 'Purposefully and materially supported hostilities against the United States' is in the eye of the beholder, and this administration has proven itself to be astonishingly impatient with criticism of any kind. The broad powers given to Bush by this legislation allow him to capture, indefinitely detain, and refuse a hearing to any American citizen who speaks out against Iraq or any other part of the so-called 'War on Terror.'

"If you write a letter to the editor attacking Bush, you could be deemed as purposefully and materially supporting hostilities against the United States. If you organize or join a public demonstration against Iraq, or against the administration, the same designation could befall you. One dark-comedy aspect of the legislation is that senators or House members who publicly disagree with Bush, criticize him, or organize investigations into his dealings could be placed under the same designation. In effect, Congress just gave Bush the power to lock them up." -- William Rivers Pitt

"It has become clear in recent months that a critical mass of the American people have seen through the lies of the Bush administration; with the president's polls at an historic low, growing resistance to the war Iraq, and the Democrats likely to take back the Congress in mid-term elections, the Bush administration is on the ropes. And so it is particularly worrying that President Bush has seen fit, at this juncture to, in effect, declare himself dictator." -- Frank Morales

No offense taken.  And yes, if you turn your filer off or use another reader, you will see a flood of HAM related material here, more so than scanners.  It actually took me by surprise to see so much.  I usually try to stay on topic on Usenet but with this newsgroup, it's hard to tell what the on topic discussion should be about.  Later.

I know what you're both saying is true. Since ham radio has been dumbed down I'm hearing a lot more Lids, Kids, and space cadets on the ham bands too and radio's don't come with Lid filters. We need to keep CW and increase the speed requirement to somewhere 13 and 20 wpm.  We can't risk dumbing down the service further.

Tnx, 73, Good luck in the contest.

It provides an incentive to keeping studying and building radio skills so you can graduate to a more permanent higher class license.  Those that fail to upgrade, no loss, we don't need them anyway.  We want quality operators.  If you want quantity, go to CB.

No matter what facet of radio you enjoy, the topic is to protect it by improving the quality of the hobbiests involved. That's why most will agree if you know morse code, you'll be a better skilled hobbiest and will improve your nich of the hobby and/or radio service you're involved with.
A valuable knowledge base for those of coming into the services and hobby.

Tnx, 73 Good luck in the contest.

Can't happen because it's not P.C. (politically correct).  Would you want to be guilty of discrimination against retarded CBers?   Hell no!  So chill, dude.

The bottom line remains. No-Coders should salute their superiors and should give up their chairs as a matter of courtesy.

Doing so is a simple show of respect.

No-Coders should be made to stand at the back of the room until they can pass no less than 5wpm. Then, and only then, will they be allowed to come to the front to whine.

I'm trying to figure out the encryption on our local Sheriffs department 400mhz public safety band, our local dispatcher goes to 100 to switch to the encryption, it garbles the transmissions to the normal scanner user I use 2 hand helds a Pro-93 and a Uniden BC80XLT.  Any help would be greatly appreciated.

I was asking for knowledge first of all because I've never heard of that encryption before. I don't need to listen to it, I was trying to get info on it never heard of that encryption before. Where I used to live didn't Excrypt their traffic at all. Bill seriously take a breather.

Radio Shack's site doesn't seem particularly useful. The "Radio Shack Scanner Modification Page" at

http://www3.sympatico.ca/len.c/rsmods.html shows the PRO-2035 has RS SKU 200-0460. It provides a link to http://support.tandy.com/support_electronics/16587.htm

but that no longer works for me.

StrongSignals reviewed the PRO-2035. In his review, Rich Wells discusses programming. His review may be what you need.

http://www.strongsignals.net/access/reviews/reviews.cgi?
type=display&rtype=rev&class=recv&num=011

http://tinyurl.com/y55kls

He also has a separate page for the PRO-2035.

Radio shack has ceased to be an electronics store long ago.
It is now just another redundant home electronics and telephone store.
I am amazed that anyone buys anything in there anyway.
If you need a telephone or a DVD player or similar you can get the same item or better at WalMart for half the price they ask.
The people who staff it from local management to the pimply-faced teenager wouldn't know WTF a resistor is, let alone a shortwave radio.
Heck, they have enough trouble looking up a replacement battery for a cordless phone which are grossly overpriced as well.

In three years I see them declaring Bankruptcy and dissappearing from the USA retail scene. Good riddence to as their recent management all but killed off their most dedicated customer base years ago.

I'm no lover of RS and agree that they slowly circling the drain. However, before people post this crap, you should go to their web site and look before believing some urban legend web site. If you did, you'd see scanners and shortwave. Not a lot but they are there.

It is a FEDERAL crime to 'use' a descrambler to intercept transmissions that are NOT your own. Hence.... if you owned a taxi cab company and wanted to scramble your transmissions to the cars.... you can legally do it. However if you 'used' that descrambler/ scrambler system to intercept police or another business transmissions you are in violation of the law.

thats right   as long as you are only suppying information    your fine if however you KNOW  he is  'going' to be doing something illegal then  your an accomplice.

For all you know  he is learning to be an engineer that works on this stuff and is just furthering his education. Stop and think about that for a sec...
HOW do people LEARN to build these new circuits and equipment ?
They have to learn it somewhere.....   If learning was a crime     we'd all be living back in caves.

Maybe so, but they did fire their CEO fairly recently.  He was the one who had a bogus degree in Theology, as if that was what was needed to run a business like theirs.

hardly steve

most people are not so teribly concerned with spelling indeed most people reconize that when all you have to offer is speling mistakes you have NO real armguement to make you are your own worst enemy. i could not make such a fool of you without YOUR help and consent

I logged this about 3 weeks ago @ 08:15 UTC to about 08:30 UTC on USB. Just a male voice transmitting a long series of phoenetics (alpha, bravo, etc.) When signing off @ about 08:30 UTC, he said, "this concludes message #69, end of transmission." Any ideas what this was?

I don't recall where I found this, but from my archives:

Uniden Bearcat 55XLT Information

The radio is a basic 10 channel scanner. Nothing fancy. If you disconnect wall power and it doesn't have batteries in it, it will lose its memories.

It uses 5AA batteries. If you put NiCd's in it, you can flip a switch in the battery compartment and they will charge when you plug it in. (If you use an external charger you don't have to the flip the switch.

Leave it on Alkaline.)

The keypad switch "locks" the keypad so you don't accidentally press a button and change your settings.

To program:

Turn on radio.

It will be in scan mode. Press Manual (orange button) to stop scanning. Press Manual button to step through channels to get to the one you want. (Or press channel number and then manual button)

If "LockOut" is displayed it means this channel isn't being "Scanned." You will want to lock out the NWS WX (National Weather Service/Weather) frequency. Pressing Lockout will toggle the status.

To program:

Select channel. Use keypad to enter frequency. Use "E" for Enter key. If the radio displays an E this means Error. Usually, the frequency you typed in is outside of the capabilities of the scanner.

Once you hit the E you will immediately start hearing anything that's out there on the frequency you entered.

Push the "Review" button and the scanner will display the frequency that is programmed for the channel. A "-" will be displayed for the decimal point.

Code is just one part of it. Here's my four step plan that will keep ham radio from becoming like CB:

Step 1: No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

Step 2: The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Step 3: Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Step 4: Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

I'm searching for Michael Agner. From what I can tell, he is very active in the Scanner hobby. I see his name all over the place except for here.

I served with a SSG Michael Agner in Korea in 1974-1976 and need to know if this is the same fellow.

If anyone knows how to contact him, please have him contact me at: rich@richgreene.com. Thanks.

P.S. Too many idiots online to use my real Nyms. Now I'm 'nobody' but I can be 'somebody'.

Hi all. My name is Rich Greene and I've been involved in scanners since back in the days of the old Bearcat crystal scanners and I had one of the first portable scanners. I was in this newsgroup a few years ago and somehow forgot to pick it back up in between software changes.

It's refreshing to see a un-moderated newsgroup without all the crap and trolls. From what I can tell here, everyone is pretty much serious about their hobby. I hope I can be of some help. I never throw any scanning software or frequency listings away. I also have several old portable scanners. A couple take crystals. I need to know if it's appropriate for me to advertise them for sale or trade on this newsgroup. I have a portable and desktop/AC/DC that I now use and don't need all the extra crap. I also have a few extra BNC antennas.

I live in Olathe, Kansas and would like to meet other scanner folks in my area. Just send me an email: rich@richgreene.com.

For the past 15 or so years, I've been trying to compile the Mother of all Frequency Lists. I get started and stop and lose what I've done. It wouldn't be of any use now anyway with all the changes taking place.

I would like to know more about the 800 band changes taking place and which scanners will be obsolete when the changes are complete. I know there are some Radio Shack and Bearcat scanners that fall into that category. I've been tossing around buying another portable with more features to replace my Pro 83 which has served me well.

Now the big question: Is there a scanner out there that will scan all legal public frequencies? I think I saw one back in the old CB days (70's) that did that and you could either manually tune it or set up scan channels. I would love to have such an item but it would have to have a feature so you can use your PC to load and unload frequencies and keep a database of sorts.

Now in your opinion, and I know this has been asked in the past, what scanners are the best on the market - both types - portable and ad/dc? I know people have different opinions and tend to be loyal to one brand regardless of features. Other than the scanner above, I would like to have the latest features on both scanners.

I think I saw a request for Police Call CD's? I think I still have a few of the past issues and years if anyone is interested. I always purchase the newest edition. Years ago up in Washington, there was a fellow that compiled a local frequency directory which was really great. Although it's over 20 years old, most of the data is still active. That's what we really need. Good regional directories other than Police Call which is hard to read. I would be willing to get together with anyone near me to compile such a publication for Kansas and Missouri areas. I'm retired and have a lot of time on my hands.

Thanks for your time. Future postings won't be as long and boring.

Rich

It seems to me that this question was asked about four or five months ago, but I can't find it now.

The BC55XLT was also sold under the Radio Shack brand name It might have been a PRO-38, a PRO-39, or a PRO-41. Some pix:

Brett's Scanner Photo Gallery
http://n7olq.home.att.net/Radio/Galleryframe.htm

http://scanpix2.home.att.net/BC/bc55xlt.jpg

http://scanpix1.home.att.net/RS/pro38.jpg

http://scanpix1.home.att.net/RS/pro41.jpg

The PRO-41 appeared on page 22 of the RS 1993 catalog; it had SKU number 20-301, and it sold for $119.99. The point is that you might be able to find a user manual at the Radio Shack website, download that, print it, and use it as your BC55XLT user manual.

The need for CW has been waining for many years now and technology has eliminated a need for it. Why do we still need CW? How many Hams still use CW? I think technical knowledge far outweighs the CW requirement. If it's eliminated, more people will PROBABLY take the test, however, you must also understand that it takes a lot of money to set up a proper station, and an operator that's devoted to the hobby. I don't think you will see a lot of folks running out purchasing $1000 Yaesu's and Kenwoods to get on the air if CW is eliminated. The FCC eliminated the requirement for a fricken CB license (KABE 1356) long ago and you sure don't see folks yapping away on CB's. They have cell phones now to communicate and GPS' to know where they are going. I have a couple GMRS/FRS radios and even paid the $80 FCC license fee. I believe in being legal. It doesn't pay to get caught and fined.

Therefore, if CW is eliminated, I do not think it will harm Ham Radio one bit. Things change with time. There won't even be an exam to talk on Ham frequencies in the future either. You young folks may see that happen. The cost of equipment will keep those that only want to screw around away from the hobby, believe me. Cost is one of the reasons I haven't got a ticket. I had a good friend of mine that had a Technician Class license (WB7RFL Tom Buckner, deceased) that was willing to teach me what I needed to know. However, the sheer cost of equipment kept me out of it. Anyone looking for a couple Cobra CB's? One is SSB.

Besides, what are all of you Ham operators afraid of? Sure you had to take the CW test and passed. Like I said, things change with time. Take a young person interested in the hobby and teach them the proper way to operate and pass the exam. QRT.

You could have fooled me. From what I see here, there are more Ham related postings than Scanner postings. Are you jummping all over the other folks that are posting Ham related material too? Or did you just get up on the wrong side of the bed? I'm not new to Usenet and don't normally post off topic material, but when I see more postings concerning a subject not related to the newsgroup, I figure maybe folks gyrated from scanners to Ham. So don't go preaching to me with your shitty attitude. You could have phrased your response a bit kinder instead of being an asshole about it. I'll lurk and see how you personally deal with the other Ham related postings. And FWIW, Scanners are strongly related to Ham radio, always have been and always will be.

Guess Mr. Powerhouse can't understand German, so he can't push his=20 attitude around with that posting.  Maybe he knows what 'dummkopf'=20 really means.

John,

If it's not too difficult for your tiny CW hating brain to handle, try to figured out how to use your killfile. Everyone is tired of seeing your retard follow-ups to my protect ham radio posts. Tnx.

Try not to get your pants dirty when you sit on the floor at the next

"When I told Abbie Hoffman that he was the first one who made me laugh since Lenny Bruce died, Hoffman said, "Really? He was my god." The combination of satirical irreverence and sense of justice that Bruce and Hoffman shared was the real spirit behind the Yippies--a term I coined to describe a phenomenon that already existed: an organic coalition of stoned hippies and political activists who engaged in such actions as throwing money on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, then explaining to reporters the meaning of that symbolism. Folksinger Phil Ochs summed it up: "A demonstration should turn you on, not turn you off." So when journalists link the Yippies with misleading bedfellows, at best it's careless shorthand; at worst it's deliberate demonization. Osama bin Laden wanted an aircraft to crash into the Pentagon. Abbie Hoffman merely wanted to levitate it." -- Paul Krassner, http://tinyurl.com/ehu3v He's too white, and way too old. Under 18 is too young, of course (gay sex with teens is illegal, even in Canada, but straight sex is fine (as young as 14), as long as there's no power imbalance involved...Hypocrisy? Nah.

Why would you think that?). At any rate, some non-white twink is more my speed.

The test will continue to dumb down because ham radio is dying. There's a new radio game in town, its called cell phone. Like it or not anyone can get a license to use them.

I've been in ham radio for over 30 years. The same discussion is going on today as was when I first started. It has never been settled and never will to satisfy all. Equipment prices will skyrocket as the number of hams continues to decline. In fact they already have. I laugh when I see radio's like an IC-706 that someone is trying to sell on Ebay for $900 plus when only a few years ago new ones were being had at Hamvention under $600. Radio is dying folks enjoy it while the government allows us to have it. There is no "use" for all the Techs anymore.Allthis brainpower should be put together to find a use for your existence instead of continually hashing the same old dead beaten horse.

Scanners and listening to the cops will die out too. Each police car will have a wireless broadband set-up and the individual cops will carry around a wireless link device to communicate to the computer in their car and that will be "THE END" for scanners!

The handwriting is on the wall!

Obviously, you are both proponents of "Realistic Philosophy!" And, I do admit, such thinking does provide one with an explanation as to where these chunks of matter, which keep landing on my head, are coming from! <straight-face> I accept such until a better explanation comes forth...

Yes there is a difference between the parties. Here's what you get with the democrats:

Defeat in Iraq,
Higher taxes,
Much Much larger government,
Renewed attacks on morality, religion, free speech and gun rights, Higher inflation and unemployment, terrorist attacks on our own shores again,
a loss in private property rights, thousands of childen murdered by being sucked from the womb with a vacuum....

If it's a Motorola type system, only the control frequencies.

If there's a secondary control frequency it's a Motorola system.  If not, all the frequencies have to be programmed in logical channel order.

That's 3db inherent loss due to splitting. (Each signal is half the original signal, or -3db.) With most TV splitters, add anywhere from 6db to 20db additional loss in the components in the splitter.

And ALL output ports must be terminated. If you move the scanner from one cable to the other you'll get additional loss due to the unterminated cable. (If there are more ports than scanners, you have to connect a terminating resistor to each unused port.)

Big city (lots of signals)? Stay away from GRE (most Radio Shack scanners) - the front end is too sensitive.

Multi-site? Uniden 996 is the only scanner that does it properly so far. (The Pro-96/2096 sort of does it due to a bug in the firmware.)

700 MHz? Uniden 396 or 996.

Portable? 396 or Pro-96.

Base/Mobile? 996 or 2096.

I have had several GRE/Radio Shack scanners and I feel that they are not sensitive enough [depending, of course, on the antenna]. I live in Edmonton, AB..a city of over 1 million so I am not sure if it qualifies as big with lots of signals as defined above. Certainly not big if compared to L.A. or New York. My favorite analog scanner is my

A FINE idea. And if the Extra needs to go to the restroom for some reason, the no-code should accompany him with a roll of tissue and assist in His endeavors.......

It's innovative ideas like yours that bring inspiration and, dare I say it, PRIDE to those who have joined the ranks of Amateur Radio. And I am shocked, I tell you, shocked, at the attempts of our members to discredit what is obviously a very inventive personality.....

There's no doubt in my mind that you could be another "Larry the Cable Guy" if you set your mind to it.   The world has far too many Einsteins and not nearly enough Howard Deans, and you might have a ready made niche.....

No one here thinks more highly of you than I ,

where the eveidence you passed one indeed based on the standard reasoning of the PrOcders one must conclude that you are the result of a code waiver or some other form of cheating

About an hour ago, Israel bombed with F-16's the only power station left in Khan Younes plunging it in TOTAL DARKNESS too. Do you know what it means to be without electricity for 10 days in today's world??? No water, no sewage, no cooling, no storing of whatever food is left, no communications....etc. As though this were not sufficient for those poor Palestinians, tonight, like every night, Israel has been bombing and sending missiles into Gaza and flying over it all night with sonic booms to scare the people and especially the children who are totally terrified.
> It's nearly 4 a.m. here and I decided to go back to my computer to communicate to my friends around the world what every single mainstream media channel..., whether American, European or Arab, is FAILING to communicate in regards to what is happening right NOW in Gaza, Palestine. I have been in front of television for the past few hours monitoring the news and I was shocked to see NOTHING on Gaza except on 2 local Arab channels and one Arab satellite channel which I shall not name for their own good..., lest the United States with its Israel lobby decide to shut them down. Even Al Jazeera channel, to my utter shock, didn't so much as mention Gaza in its last 2 news broadcasts!! Let me tell you my friends what I have been watching for the past few hours and what I am still listening to on my head-phones.
> Yesterday, a one and a half year old child died in an awful way of injuries sustained by Israeli bombing, and mainstream media instead of covering it, is allowing a terrorist like Ehud Olmert to take the microphone and tell the world that Israel never targets civilians. It has been 10 days now and all Israel has done is target civilians and kill dozens! One of the strongest armies in the world has declared war on a population that does not even have an army! Water is lacking, food > is scarce, medicine has run out, FUEL has run out... and Israel refuses to let trucks carrying supplies enter Gaza to save a civilian population which was already condemned to live in refugee camps because Israel kicked them out of their homes and stole them. Even Palestinian hospitals hardly know how to operate. When Israel first bombed Gaza's power mains, hospitals resorted to using their generators. But generators can only keep going if there is fuel.... and there no longer is fuel. The sick and elderly who live on machines are slowly dying. Babies in incubators are dying. With the increasing rubbish that can no longer be picked up from the streets, diseases are starting to spread. A humanitarian disaster is taking place in Gaza NOW and Mr. Bush, his Israeli White House, his corrupt AIPAC stooge of a Congress, Mr. Bolton and Mr. Annan are laying the grounds for their attack on Syria and Iran.... and who knows what else.

> And the world is silent. And mainstream media is behaving as though nothing were happening there. All it cares about is that damned Israeli soldier that means ZILCH amid 1.4 million innocent civilians who had nothing to do with his capture!
> Last, but not least...., NONE of this would be happening were it not for the American tax-payer who for decades financed and is still financing every bullet and missile being shot from Israel. What does it take for the American tax-payers to understand that they are ultimately paying for their own destruction. The US has created a monster that now controls it. US soldiers are fighting Israel's dirty war in the Middle East. US soldiers are dying so that Israel can prosper. US families are losing their loved ones so that Israel doesn't have to send their kids.... After all, what is an American goy compared to an Israeli life? American soldiers are kidnapped all the time in Iraq and they are not even mentioned in the news. Yet, when an Israeli soldier is taken prisoner, ONE soldier, the president of the United States himself comes out to speak on his behalf! Where are the American people? Where is that great nation that we were all told represented "freedom" and "liberty"?? It is being held on a leash by Ehud Olmert and AIPAC. At least in the Arab world, we have the excuse of being the underdeveloped third world. What is America's excuse? If only Americans knew that Israel will use them and dump them in a split second!
> While I am writing this, I am watching the rescue of bodies from a building that collapsed in Gaza about an hour ago after it was bombed by Israeli F-16's. I see panicked and scared Palestinians lighting the collapsed building with their torches and digging with their hands in the rubble to find survivors. I see a hand sticking out the rubble and it is still moving. A body is under a heavy concrete wall which no one can move without a bulldozer..., but there is no fuel and no bulldozer to help. Palestinians don't have bulldozers.

I like it, but there's only one problem.  No-codes don't use toilet paper.

Somebody is going to have to Elmer them on how to wipe a butt and since it's your idea....

If you're really a code tested Extra, why do you want to dumb down ham radio? You should help me push for better radio exams by supporting an increase in speed of the code requirement. If we can get rid of the no-codes and nickle hams, test everyone up to 13 and 20wpm, no one will have to sit on the floor at club meetings anymore.

I don't want to dumb down amateur radio, but you very much want to. You see, amateur radio is supposed to be about advancement of the art, and preparing and maintaining a civilian population with contemporary communications skills Mandating a mode that has fallen completely out of military and commercial use as obsolete is contrary to the concept of advancement of the art. It is as if blood letting was a required course for a medical degree.

Code is fine for those who like that mode. I use it at least once a month. However, it is no longer the mode that is best in weak signal conditions, or that uses the narrowest band width for effective communication. PSK31 runs circles around code. And guess what....many of the most fervent code guys I know cheat and use computers to print the received code on a screen, and a keyboard to allow the computer to generate their sending.

An amateur extra exam these days covers information a lot more current than that on the exam just a few decades ago. Perhaps instead of harping on code as some indicator of intelligence, you should direct your efforts to having all hams retested on license renewal, to make sure they continue to be current with the state of the art in amateur radio.   Or do you believe that de Forest era vacuum tubes are more relevant to amateur radio in the 21st century than integrated circuits?

He's still trying to homebrew his first spark-gap transmitter.

When you place 100 or more posts a day, is that not a "crapathon"?
Sure it is.

You haven't the sense to see that Slow Code is returning your spams in kind in an attempt to show you just how ridiculous you are.
You need professional help, Mork. Perhaps Woger will loan you his therapist.

Everything you post is crap, Mork. Among your other character flaws, you are myopic as well.

Blasphemy! The IBM 650 was the first computer
I ever programmed - in 1958 at Texas A&M.
Bi-Quinary (like an abacus) with a magnetic drum and tons of air-conditioning to cool the hundreds of dual triodes.

  All these people that go out and buy stamps, they should be making there own. There seems to be a post office in every city, it just ruins there creativity and thinking!

I was having REAL FUN with the CLOWNtesters this weekend all on HF. Set the rig's tx output to about 10 watts and loaded up into the 75m carolina windom with DX callsigns and the occasional rare ITU section. Give em a call and these DX CLOWNTESTERS would fall all over each other thinkin they just worked a needed section an they now will be pinchin a loaf waiting for a card to arrive in the mail to hang on their wall and impress their fatassed ham club blokes! Baaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa hahahahahahhahaha!!! what a bunch of fools.

You don't cut wood for winter, forage the woods for berries, turn the crank on a model T, build spears to kill a deer, wash clothes in a river, or make candles to light the night, why would you want to make your own stamps?  Just collect them, no CW test required.

Try not to drool on the sticky side.

It's not code requirements or tests that is keeping (and driving) good people out of ham radio, and away from lists like these, it's psychopaths like SC and the idiots that feed him. This WAS about real issues, and about technology (I hit this cesspool from the antennas list), but it is not now.
Thanks to the crap fron SC, and from the idiots that feed this Troll, I'm leaving. On real lists, s--t pots like him are kicked out. On usenets, the only way is to quit feeding his ego, but, unfortunately, he is not the only idiot here.
Bye-Bill

I can work the UK on 40 phone now without going split. They can use 7040-7200 now. OTOH, who knows when the broadcasters will ever move?

It's a complete crock about protecting the DX. The answer for ragchewers has always been to use a band that isn't open to where you want to be protected from, i.e. don't ragchew on an open band unless you want DX (meaning in this case US hams) to ask to join the QSO (some actually like it when that happens, you know). It's not really hard for them to find a band that isn't open to the US.

Sheesh! No wonder Dee says CWGet can't copy it with these guys

KH2D and I used to chat on a dead band; 10 meters. Then someone from Africa would break in for a QSO

I recently bought a bunch of old base scanners, mostly some early Uniden Bearcat models from the late 70's. I didn't realize that these were crystal-tuned units, and now I'm stuck with them. I was wondering if there's any way to modify them to be adjustable. Perhaps an extra circuit employing 8 simple oscillators with adjustments, connected to the 8 crystal sockets? There must be a way to do this......

WHAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA!

That's not going to happen Dan. Amateur radio is important to me. I would turn off my rigs before I would violate any section of Part 97.

Tnx, 73, Good luck in the contest.

That obviously makes you a real programmer.  But it is the hard way to do things, especially if you find a mistake and need to insert a new instruction somewhere. All of the target addresses after the inserted instruction change, and you have to go back and correct all references to those later instructions, as well as some references to earlier instructions (relative jump instructions change value). I much prefer the "luxury" of an assembler, because it will do all of that stuff for you.

To stay on topic, I'd probably better mention that Michael Jackson's first chimp was named "Bubbles" and that the chimp and Michael would dress alike wherever they went. The chimp later moved away to Chassell, Michigan and started a consulting business. Michael took up with another chimp named Max, thereby sending Bubbles into a jealous rage. Bubbles has been acting his anger out in Usenet's rrap ever since. He can be recognized easily, because chimps don't spell or type all that well, and his posts stick out like a sore thumb. He tries to cover it up by claiming to be dyslexic, but everyone recognizes a chimp's typing when they see it, and they know that the poster is really Bubbles.

So you finally admit that you're Bubbles, eh?

> stil avoiding you Progaming gaff tell do you take advice on uhow to Bubbles, the word you want is spelled "gaffe" (I hope). If you really mean "gaff," why then you are speaking of either sailing gear or cross dressing garments (see http://www.samiscloset.com/gaffs.asp). As to programming, why I have forgotten more about it than you have yet to learn.

> handle your gaff from Kerry? it sure looks like it

John Kerry has never sent me a gaff, and I'm puzzled as to why you think that he is a cross dresser?

I am offering my Optoelectronics OptoCom communications receiver/scanner for sale. It is really nice condition & works 100%. I have been using it with Probe 7.0 software.

The serial # is1481095.

I do not have a box, manual, or 12volt supply.

I will double box carefully however. The manual is available online.
Any wall wart or 12v supply will work fine.

I am selling to help fund other radio projects.

I would sell for $375.00 shipped UPS Insured Ground lower 48.

Thanks for considering this fine receiver.

Ok, acting on several persons advice, I bought ScanControl and find it fairly easy to use.

However, I can't seem to figure what the control channels are that it keeps asking for.

Is there a list somewhere that has recent freqs and control channels for the Fort Myers-Lee County, Florida area.

After I obtain them, where do I tell the program what they are?

Thanks Again to all those that helped me and will continue to do so,

Mike - SW Fl

Go here to the Radio Reference web site. Lots of good information:
http://radioreference.com/modules.php?name=RR&sid=226

I am not familiar with the software that you have, but the control channels are the frequencies in the trunked system that send out the digital data that tells all the radios in the system what frequencies to switch to. They can be identified because they transmit constantly a noise that sounds like a diesel engine idling. Your scanner uses these channels to trunk track the system, so you need these.

I just recently acquired a PRO-92 scanner and anxiously wanted to begin uploading channels.

I downloaded the program Win92

I read on starrsoft.com
http://www.starrsoft.com/software/Win96/Cables/cables.html

that the cable to purchase was RS's 20-289. I drove there with my scanner and laptop. Oh no, this is a serial cable and my new HP laptop doesn't have a serial connection. My next bright idea was to try a USB to serial adaptor with RS's 20-289. No good, the laptop needed drivers for the adaptor and the adaptor did not come with software.

Next I saw sitting on the shelf was RS's 20-047 kit which included the drivers CD and USB cable. I loaded the necessary drivers and hooked up the cable and scanner and NOTHING. I kept getting errors, something to the effect that Win92 couldn't open the port. Another message said there was a time out error in waiting for some code.

Does Radio Shack have anything that will work on the new computers and a PRO-92 scanner? I'd rather buy something locally (Chicago) off the shelf rather than wait a week or so for an Internet order. If that's the way to go then I have no other choice.

Thanks for any feedback.

The 30 Steps below will help all No-Code Hams, it will also help you to find others just like yourself. These 30 steps should also be added to the present writtens.

Step One: Use as many "Q" signals as possible. Yes, I know they were invented solely for CW and are totally inappropriate for two meter FM, but they are fun and entertaining. They keep people guessing as to what you really meant. I.E. "I'm going to QSY to the phone." Can you really change frequencies to the phone? QSL used to mean, "I am acknowledging receipt", but now it appears to mean, "yes" or "OK". I guess I missed it when the ARRL changed the meaning. It is also best to use "OK" and "QSL" together. Redundancy is the better part of Lid-dom.

Step Two: Never laugh when you can say "HI HI". No one will ever know you aren't a long time CW rag-chewer if you don't tell them. They'll think you've been on since the days of Marconi.

Step Three: Utilize an alternative vocabulary. Use words like "destinated" and "negatory". It's OK to make up your own words here. I.E. "Yeah Tom, I "pheelbart zaphonix" occasionally myself."

Step Four: Always say "XX4XXX" (Insert your own call) "for I.D." As mentioned in Step One, anything that creates redundancy is always encouraged. That's why we have the Department of Redundancy Department. (Please note that you can follow your call with "for identification purposes" instead of "for I.D." While taking longer to say, it is worth more "LID points".

Step Five: The better the copy on two meter FM, the more you should use phonetics. Names should be especially used if they are short or common ones. I.E. "My name is Al... Alpha Lima" or "Jack.. Juliet Alpha Charlie Kilo." If at all possible use the less common HF phonetics "A4SM... America, Number Four, Sugar Mexico." And for maximum "LID points", make up unintelligible phonetics. "My name is Bob... Billibong Oregano Bumperpool."

Step Six: Always give the calls of yourself and everyone who is (or has been) in the group, whether they are still there or not. While this has been unnecessary for years, it is still a great memory test. You may also use "and the group" if you are an "old timer" or just have a bad memory. Extra points for saying everyone's call and then clearing in a silly way "K2PKK, Chow, Chow."

Step Seven: Whenever possible, use the wrong terminology. It keeps people guessing. Use "modulation" when you mean "deviation", and vice-versa.

Step Eight: If someone asks for a break, always finish your turn, taking as long as possible before turning it over. Whenever possible, pass it around a few times first. This will discourage the breaker, and if it is an emergency, encourage him to switch to another repeater and not bother you.

Step Nine: Always ask involved questions of the person who is trying to sign out. Never let him get by with just a "yes" or "no" answer. Make it a question that will take him a long time to answer.

Step Ten: The less you know on a subject, the more you should speculate about it in the roundtable. Also the amount of time you spend on the subject should be inversely proportionate to your knowledge of the subject even though you have no damn clue.

Step Eleven: Always make sure you try to communicate with only a handheld and a rubber duck antenna. Also, make sure you work through a repeater that you can hear very well, but it cannot hear you. This will put out a kind of "LID mating call": "Well, Joe, I can hear the repeater just fine here. I wonder why it can't hear me?" You will score maximum LID points if you are mobile, and with the radio lying in the passenger seat.

Step Twelve: If you hear two amateurs start a conversation, wait until they are twenty seconds into their contact, and then break in to make a call, or better yet to use the auto-patch. Make sure you keep the repeater tied up for at least three minutes. This way, once the two have re-established contact, they won't even remember what they were talking about.

Step Thirteen: You hear someone on the repeater giving directions to a visiting amateur. Even if the directions are good, make sure you break in with your own "alternate route but better way to get there" version. This is most effective with several other "would-be LIDs", each giving a different route. By the time the visiting amateur unscrambles all the street names whizzing by in his mind, he should have moved out of the range of the repeater. This keeps you from having to stick around to help the guy get back out of town, later.

Step Fourteen: If an annoying station is bothering you, make sure your other "LID" buddies have a "coded" frequency list. Even though "CODES" are strictly forbidden on Amateur Radio, it's really neat to practice "James Bond" tactics.

Step Fifteen: Always use the National Calling Frequency for general conversations. The more uninteresting, the longer you should use it. Extra points are awarded if you have recently move from an adjacent frequency for no reason. Make sure when DX is "rolling" in on 52.525 that you hang out there and talk to your friends five miles down the road about the good old CB days!

Step Sixteen: Make sure that if you have a personal problem with someone, you should voice your opinion in a public forum, especially a net. Make sure you give their name, call, and any other identifying remarks. For maximum points, make sure the person in question is not on the repeater, or not available.

Step Seventeen: Make sure you say the first few words of each transmission twice, especially if it is the same thing each time. Like "roger, roger" or "fine business, fine business". I cannot stress enough about encouraging redundancy.

Step Eighteen: If you hear a conversation on a local repeater, break in and ask how each station is receiving you. Of course they will only see the signal of the repeater you are using, but it's that magic moment when you can find a fellow "LID", and get the report. Extra points are awarded if you are using a base station, and the repeater is less than twenty-five air miles from you.

Step Nineteen: Use the repeater for an hour or two at a time, preventing others from using it. Better yet, do it on a daily basis. Your quest is to make people so sick of hearing your voice every time they turn on their radio, they'll move to another frequency. This way you'll lighten the load on the repeater, leaving even more time for you to talk on it.

Step Twenty: See just how much flutter you can generate by operating at handheld power levels too far away from the repeater. Engage people in conversations when you know they wont be able to copy half of what your saying. Even when they say your uncopyable, continue to string them along by making further transmissions. See just how frustrated you can make the other amateur before he finally signs off in disgust.

Step Twenty One: Use lots of radio jargon. After all, it makes you feel important using words ordinary people don't say. Who cares if it makes you sound like you just fell off Channel 19 on the citizen's Band? Use phrases such as "Roger on that", "10-4", "I'm on the side", "Your making the trip" and "Negatory on that".

Step Twenty Two: Use excessive microphone gain. See just how loud you can make your audio. Make sure the audio gain is so high that other amateurs can hear any bugs crawling on your floor. If mobile, make sure the wind noise is loud enough that others have to strain to pick your words out from all the racket.

Step Twenty Three: Start every transmission with the word "Roger" or "QSL". Sure, you don't need to acknowledge that you received the other transmission in full. After all, you would simply ask for a repeat if you missed something. But consider it your gift to the other amateur to give him solace every few seconds that his transmissions are being received.

Step Twenty Four: When looking for a contact on a repeater, always say your "listening" or "monitoring" multiple times. I've always found that at least a half dozen times or so is good. Repeating your multiple "listening" ID's every 10 to 15 seconds is even better. Those people who didn't want to talk to you will eventually call you, hoping you'll go away after you have finally made a contact.

Step Twenty Five: Always use a repeater, even if you can work the other station easily on simplex ... especially if you can make the contact on simplex. The coverage of the repeater you use should be inversely proportional to your distance from the other station.

Step Twenty Six: When on repeaters using courtesy tones, you should always say "over". Courtesy tones are designed to let everyone know when you have unkeyed but don't let that stop you. Say "over", "back to you" or "go ahead". It serves no useful purpose but don't worry, it's still fun!

Step Twenty Seven: Use the repeater's autopatch for frivolous routine calls... especially during morning or evening commute times. While pulling into the neighborhood, call home to let them know you'll be there in two minutes.... or, call your spouse to complain about the bad day you had at work. After all, the club has "measured rate" service on their phone line so they get charged for each autopatch call. Your endeavor is to make so many patches in a year that you cost the club at least $20 in phone bills. That way you'll feel you got your money's worth for your dues!

Step Twenty Eight: Never say "My name is ....." It makes you sound human. If at all possible, use one of the following phrases: a) "The personal here is ..." b) "The handle here is..."

Step Twenty Nine: Use "73" and "88" incorrectly. Both are already considered plural, but add a "s" to the end anyway. Say "73's" or "88's". Who cares if it means "best regards" and "love and kisses." Better yet, say "seventy thirds"! (By the way, seventy thirds equals about 23.3).

Step Thirty: If the repeater is off the air for service, complain about the fact that it was off the air as soon as it's turned back on. Act as though your entire day has been ruined because the repeater wasn't available when you wanted to use it. Even thought you have never paid a penny to help out with the upkeep of it.

Radio Shack has a cable with a USB connector on one end and the appropriate plug for a PRO-92, 95, 97, or 96 one the other end. Offhand, I don't remember the catalog number, but I am sure you can find it on the RS website. The same cable is also available from the mfr. of the PRO-92, at http://www.greamerica.com/scanner.html.   Many people have used the 20-289 cable with Win92 and a USB/Serial adapter, starrsoft.com has a page on which adapters work best and how to do it.

The 20-047 cable definitely is not for the PRO-92. It is for older scanners.

Wrong - the 20-047 is the USB cable for newer scanners, see http://www.radioshack.com/product/index.jsp?productId=2177609&cp

20-048 is for older scanners and is discontinued.

Sorry, my error! Yes, the 20-047 is the correct USB cable for the PRO-92, and it should work.

The 20-289 cable and the Radio Shack or Keyspan USB adapter. The drivers are available for both - in the package and on the respective web sites.

The 20-047 cable won't work - the scanner end voltage levels aren't compatible with the Pro-92.

You could build a synthesizer. You'd need a CPU also, to control it, and some RAM to keep the frequencies you want to monitor. Some ROM to keep the firmware.

Or you could buy a Uniden 996 for a lot less money.

RadioReference www.radioreference.com should have what you are looking for.

With the control frequencies, they need to be keyed in first, then followed by the secondary frequencies.

With the Radio Shack pro-95 if you have one of those, start each bank by

Ch. 00 - leave blank
Ch 01 - key in control channel
Ch 02 - key first secondary frequency and continue.

From the Radio Shack website for the 20-047 cable:

These scanners are compatible and always require the 3" cable adapter:
20-196, 20-427, 20-428, 20-466, 20-496, 20-515, 20-522, 20-523, 20-524B, 20-525, 20-526, 20-527, and most new RadioShack models.
a.. Most scanners use the 3" stereo to mono adapter (included)

PRO-92 = 20-522 so it is supported. And 20-196 = PRO-2067, the mobile version of the PRO-92, also supported.

SC

Not only should the No-Coder give up his seat to a superior, he should also wipe it clean with disinfectant.

That's odd, because I have a 20-527 [Pro-97] and it WILL NOT work with the 3" stereo-to-mono adapter. The stereo plug must be plugged directly into the scanner. Might be a firmware change. Can't speak for other scanners.

No, you can still have your microphone but you should be forced to pass a code test before you're allowed to use it. I like 5 WPM for Tech, 13 for General, and 20wpm for Extra, but then, I'm not lazy.

Then why don't they?

>understanding of the requirements.

Nonsense. Pro-coders do NOT have some "lock" on What The Requirements Should Be. They never did, despite all the pro-code propaganda drilled into your respective psyches.

It should be quite obvious that every other radio service has either given up on using morse code for communications or never considered it in the first place. Manual radiotelegraphy has only a slight advantage in communications with other amateurs using radiotelegraphy who do not speak English.

Note: Nowhere in the "requirements" (Title 47 C.F.R. Part 97 for US radio amateurs) is it mandatory for US amateurs to communicate with foreigners. NB: Non-English speakers using International Morse Code are, essentially, required to learn parts of English to understand the English alphabet (difficult if their native language is syllabic or has a different alphabet).

The ITU-R "requirements" (Radio Regulations) no longer "require" administrations to test ALL their amateurs for any license having below-30-MHz privileges. The major (in population) nation administrations have dropped their morse code testing or substitute other tests in lieu of morse code. Since some of those nations do not have English as a primary language, those will have some future difficulty using that (supposed "universal language" of morse code) for communications with USA radio amateurs.

>In addition, most of us have experienced people who said they could not learn code but upon questioning find that they did not use a good training method and did not train correctly.

More overtly biased opinion...written AS IF morse code were an "absolute requirement" when it is merely an old regulatory hanger-on in USA amateur federal rules.

The REGULATION (not "the requirement") for US radio amateurs is simply a man-made regulation which can be un-man-made. It is not some God-given commandment of radio. Indeed, all other US radio services operating below 30 MHz do NOT use morse code radiotelegraphy. Why should radio amateurs be held elevated to some special significance?

Except for the older military-trained radiotelegraphers in US amateur radio, all the tales told (by so-called successful pro-coders) have them doing basic learning then trying out on the amateur radio bands for greater skill in radiotelegraphy.

The basic fallacy of pro-coder thinking is that "all" have some innate ability to learn morse code. That has been disproven as far back as World War II when the US military began screening new recruits for the aptitude to learn morse code. That fallacy has been disproven by countless other tales of individuals who tried the so-called "good training methods" and tried to "train correctly" (even under strict supervision).

>Yet when they decided they were tired of waiting did learn it and got their upgrade.

The "upgrade requirements" were lobbied for to emphasize morse code radiotelegraphy skill. That is history. It would have been difficult to overcome the lobbying of the ARRL towards such "upgrades through morsemanship." Yet there has been efforts by concerned radio amateurs (who have been tested to the maximum telegraphic radtes) to eliminate the morse code test entire. That is not some strict USA effort since the ITU did change international amateur Radio Regulations in 2003...under pressure from the IARU. Your sentence is written with an obvious pro-coder bias.

>Then finding out how useful it was in ham pursuits were glad that they had done it.

Another fallacy and another pro-coder bias statement. It is obvious that many, many US radio amateurs were NOT favorites of morse radiotelegraphy and never used it after they received their first license.

>So far of each of the reasons that people put forth as to why they can't >learn it have been disproven by the example of other people with the same >problem having gone ahead and done it.

Yet another fallacy and a repetition of the earlier fallacy that all US human beings are somehow able to learn morse code...provided they have some (mysterious) "attitude" adjustment in favor of radiotelegraphy as an "absolute" requirement in radio?

>The 5wpm level is obtainable >although some of the problem do make faster speeds a problem (constant >tinnitus may be a severe problem at 20 wpm for example).

Then they should use "flashing lights or vibrating pads."

The reduction to 5 WPM equivalent word rate was an attempt of the FCC to satisfy both the pro-morse-code-test citizens and the (ever-growing) NO-code-test advocates. It satisfied neither.

>My ex-OM had 70% >hearing loss in both ears and severe tinnitus. He passed the 5wpm.

It would seem that one of you (perhaps both) at lost the ability to understand the "I do" at your marriage ceremony?

Did your "EX" pass using flashing lights or vibrating pads?

>I know people with dyslexia who have passed.

I knew people with terminal cancer who "passed." [just not the code test]

I "know people" ranging from PhD aerospace gurus to never-make-star-quality bimbo actresses and thousands of shades of personal abilities in between. I know few dyslexics.

>The blind have passed.

I am acquainted with several blind people through the Braille Institute. None of them had any desire to learn morse code. They were thankful enough to be able to get around by themselves and be reasonably productive in life.

>Even the deaf have passed using flashing lights or vibrating pads.

In the year that Ham Radio magazine sold out to CQ, I interviewed 11 licensed radio amateurs preparing an article for that magazine. ALL of them passed their code tests for amateur radio licenses when they could still hear.

None of them "passed using flashing lights or vibrating pads." All were male. One was a practicing dentist.

>Do you have competitions in your model railroading activity? If you enter >that competition, you all have to follow the published rules with no >exceptions.

Part 97, Title 47 C.F.R. does NOT manadate that US radio amateurs engage in "competition" radio activity. Federal law (Communications Act of 1934 plus the Telecommunications Act of 1996) requires ALL US radio amateurs to follow its regulations. That is NO contest nor a "competition" activity. It is merely the LAW.

As with all US federal agencies, the FCC does accept citizen commentary to them regarding radio regulations. The FCC responds to Petitions submitted by US citizens in regards to those radio regulations. [however, not with blinding speeds of decision in regards to amateur radio] Nowhere does the FCC discriminate between those are already licensed in amateur radio versus those not licensed. FCC does not treat the group of already-licensed as some kind of fraternal order of the already-licensed to be listened to over and above all other interested citizens.

The morse code test (for under-30-MHz operating privileges) affects the non-licensed US citizens. It does NOT affect those already legally licensed as radio amateurs...except in the limited conditions of certain already-licensed Technician classes. That code test does NOT legally affect ANY other already-licensed US radio amateur. If they say it does then they have some emotional disturbance (not a legal problem nor a regulatory problem).

I know a few model railroaders. As far as I know none are into "competitions" concerning their hobby. They do it for the fun of model railroading. As a hobby, not as a substitute for life...nor advancing the state of the art in rail transport.

I know many more model builders and model aircraft flyers. [I have been both] The Academy of Model Aeronautics (AMA) is a membership organization (about a quarter million members in the USA) with a large rule set to follow in flying model aircraft. That rule set is for both competition flying and for safety; there is special liability insurance for members of the AMA in regards to that flying activity. There is no absolute requirement to be an AMA member to enjoy model airplane flying nor is there some federal test one must take to be one. It is a hobby...yet the AMA has successfully petitioned for and gotten many radio channels expressly for model remote control. No code test nor license was required. You may read about it in Part 95, Title 47 C.F.R. under Radio Control Radio Service.

"Park flyers" are free to fly models, even to radio-control them, all without being licensed by the FCC or as a member of the Academy of Model Aeronautics. Add to that the R-C cars and boats. There is a very large model hobby industry existing in the USA to provide for such hobbyists. From the size of that industry the number of modelers would easily equal the number of USA radio amateurs...if not exceeding it.

Your comments in regards to "competitiveness" do not apply to US citizens seeking to change existing radio regulations in the USA, any radio service.

You try to help someone be a better ham and look what happens, they killfile you.   I knew dumbing down ham radio would let in a bunch of ungrateful people, but I didn't think it would get this bad.

you might look at yourself but no EVERYTHING is OTHER peoeples fault indeed you sound lIke Manson complaining that peopel were not going along with his dieas and so to help he saged the Tate and LaBianca Killing

is that you plan for the ARS SC?

More likely a knee jerk reaction to the very few but very vocal ones who try to come in and act like they know all there is to know about radio when the "ink isn't even dry on their license".   It's unfortunate that the experienced hams don't have the discipline to withstand this nonsense without such knee-jerk reactions.

When a new licensee (the level of license is irrelevant) tells me that you can't work DX without an amplifier, I just tell him about the countries I worked with my 100 watt radio and relatively low mount G5RV. But some hams turn bitter instead when a newbie insists that he is right and they are wrong.

Dee, N8UZE

No such "propaganda", Len.

Why is that important to amateur radio policy, Len? Amateurs do use Morse Code - extensively.

Actually, Morse Code has a lot of advantages.

That's true. But one of the Basis and Purposes of the Amateur Radio Service is international good will. Communicating with "foreigners" is one way to do that.

Of course. So?

Yep. That changed almost 3-1/2 years ago. Yet FCC has not acted upon it.

How do you know?

Have China, India and the countries making up the former Soviet Union changed their Morse Code test policy? How about Japan?

Seems to me that the changes have mostly occurred in Western Europe, the British Commonwealth, and a few South American countries.

It's a fact that at least some people use poorly-designed training methods.

That's true. In fact, all radio license requirements are man-made.

Why is that so important? Do you think radio amateurs should not use it either?

It's not about 'special significance".

Radio amateurs do use Morse Code, so it makes sense to test for knowledge of it.

What's wrong with that?

There are obviously those who cannot learn it - just as there are those who cannot learn to speak, or read and write, or who cannot pass the written tests.

Nope.

The military aptitude testing was done to find those who could learn the fastest and reach the highest levels of skill in the least time. The requirements for military radio telegraphers were much higher than for amateurs, and the military could not afford lots of time to train them.

btw, the existence of such aptitude testing proves that the US military needed large numbers of Morse Code skilled radio operators during WW2.

Who lobbied for those requirements, Len?

When did they lobby for the requirements?

The fact is that in all the history of US amateur radio licensing, every increase in Morse Code testing has been accompanied by an increase in written test requirements. So the emphasis has always been balanced between written testing and Morse Code testing.

Since 1990 it has not been necessary for anyone with a doctor's note seeking an FCC-issued amateur license to go beyond the basic 5 wpm test. Since 2000 it has not been necessary for anyone seeking an FCC-issued amateur license to go beyond the basic 5 wpm test.

When did ARRL do such lobbying, Len? 1936?

In other words, it didn't satisfy you

> Part 97, Title 47 C.F.R. does NOT manadate that US radio amateurs engage in "competition" radio activity. Federal law (Communications Act of 1934 plus the Telecommunications Act of 1996) requires ALL US radio amateurs to follow its regulations. That is NO contest nor a "competition" activity. It is merely the LAW.

And it still is! That's a good thing.

> As with all US federal agencies, the FCC does accept citizen commentary to them regarding radio regulations. The FCC responds to Petitions submitted by US citizens in regards to those radio regulations. [however, not with blinding speeds of decision in regards to amateur radio] Nowhere does the FCC discriminate between those are already licensed in amateur radio versus those not licensed. FCC does not treat the group of already-licensed as some kind of fraternal order of the already-licensed to be listened to over and above all other interested citizens.

The FCC accepts comments from everyone - not just citizens. "Foreigners" and groups/corporations are welcome to comment as well.

How much consideration the comments get is another matter.

> The morse code test (for under-30-MHz operating privileges) affects the non-licensed US citizens.

And those licensed, too. And noncitizens.

> It does NOT affect those already legally licensed as radio amateurs...except in the limited conditions of certain already-licensed Technician classes. That code test does NOT legally affect ANY other already-licensed US radio amateur.

It affects them in many ways. If amateur radio should change for the worse because of changes in license requirements, those who are already licensed would be affected.

For example, if someone wanted to change the real estate zoning in your neighborhood, that change would not "legally affect" you or your neighbors, unless you wanted to build on your property. Your houses would not change.

> If they say it does then they have some emotional disturbance (not a legal problem nor a regulatory problem).

Not true. If amateur radio is made worse by rules changes, all involved are affected. You, who are not involved, are unaffected.

If someone wanted to change the real estate zoning in your neighborhood, that change would not "legally affect" you or your neighbors, unless you wanted to build on your property. Your houses would not change. Would you say that those who resisted such a zoning change have an "emotional disturbance"?

> I know a few model railroaders. As far as I know none are into "competitions" concerning their hobby. They do it for the fun of model railroading. As a hobby, not as a substitute for life...nor advancing the state of the art in rail transport.

Model railroading does not involve any sort of licensing, nor use of the radio spectrum. What one model railroader does with his/her layout does not directly affect what other model railroaders can do with theirs.

Amateur radio isn't like that. We use a shared and limited resource - the radio spectrum.

A more valid analogy would be something like operating motor vehicles for noncommercial purposes, where the medium (the roads) are shared with many others.

> I know many more model builders and model aircraft flyers. [I have been both] The Academy of Model Aeronautics (AMA) is a membership organization (about a quarter million members in the USA) with a large rule set to follow in flying model aircraft. That rule set is for both competition flying and for safety; there is special liability insurance for members of the AMA in regards to that flying activity. There is no absolute requirement to be an AMA member to enjoy model airplane flying nor is there some federal test one must take to be one. It is a hobby...yet the AMA has successfully petitioned for and gotten many radio channels expressly for model remote control.

How many channels? How much total spectrum? How much of it is below 30 MHz?

IIRC, the total amount of spectrum set aside for model control is less than the narrowest amateur band above 30 MHz.

btw, there has been no Morse Code test requirement in the US for use of all the amateur bands above 30 MHz.

> No code test nor license was required. You may read about it in Part 95, Title 47 C.F.R. under Radio Control Radio Service.

They got a few channels in a few narrow slices of VHF/UHF. They are allowed to use only very low power, with almost all their communications limited to line-of-sight.

Amateur radio is very different.

> "Park flyers" are free to fly models, even to radio-control them, all without being licensed by the FCC or as a member of the Academy of Model Aeronautics. Add to that the R-C cars and boats. There is a very large model hobby industry existing in the USA to provide for such hobbyists. From the size of that industry the number of modelers would easily equal the number of USA radio amateurs...if not exceeding it.

Yet all they need is a small assortment of VHF/UHF channels, low power, small antennas and line-of-sight radio.

Is that what you think amateur radio should be?

It should be remembered that one of the primary reasons model aircraft enthusiasts got channels in the ~70 MHz range was the fact that their 27 MHz allocation became unusable due to being effectively taken over by illegal cb operation.
> Your comments in regards to "competitiveness" do not apply to US citizens seeking to change existing radio regulations in the USA, any radio service.

FCC does not limit comments to only US citizens.

And when FCC recently asked for comments on the Morse Code test issue, the majority of those commenting were against the complete elimination of the Morse Code test. The ratio was approximately 55% in favor of at least some Morse Code testing.

Dee, the "ink on my license" has been "dry" for 50 years.

The mimeograph "ink" on my Army assignment has been "dry" for 53 years.

The "ink" on my first aerospace hiring has also been "dry" for 50 years.

In a half century of being radio-active, I've continually been learning, working, experimenting, trying, doing. I DO know a fair amount of things about radio and electronics but there is always something new coming up all the time.

OH! You mean AMATEUR RADIO "license?" Of course. Amateur radio is so very DIFFERENT than all other kinds of radio...

Riiiight...those coming into ham radio from any other kind of radio service(s) are "newbies" and "ignorant"...?

Heil thinks so. Do you think so?

Nice "knees" you have, Dee... :-)

Gosh, I "worked countries" with nothing less than 1 KW output on HF and a delta-match dipole. Short-range, about 300 miles. Of course, for 24/7 ops on HF crossing the Pacific there was 40 KW PEP into a rhombic... :-)

More likely a knee jerk reaction to the very few but very vocal ones who try to come in and act like they know all there is to know about radio when the "ink isn't even dry on their license".   It's unfortunate that the experienced hams don't have the discipline to withstand this nonsense without such knee-jerk reactions.

When a new licensee (the level of license is irrelevant) tells me that you can't work DX without an amplifier, I just tell him about the countries I worked with my 100 watt radio and relatively low mount G5RV. But some hams turn bitter instead when a newbie insists that he is right and they are wrong.

Uhhhhh Dee, your 100 watt radio has an amplifier in it as do all modern transceivers. I have, in the past, worked DX using just an oscillator but I personally don't know of anyone who doesn't use an amplifier nowadays.

That is correct. That is because you are a tech and cannot work HF at all!

Like Dee, I've worked stations worldwide with "just" 100 watts and a G5RV and you could too, if you'd but learn a paltry 5wpm code speed.

This code argument really gets old. I passed the General 13WPM code. Bidg deal. Yeah, I like to use CW, but do I think people need to be tested on CW? Heck NO!  Let's end this antiquated test. It's a modern era. If you want to learn it -fine, but don't push your old and outdated beliefs on anyone else.

ID Tracker II has been officially released. ID Tracker II basically supports all of the features of the original ID Tracker with the following exceptions:

- Supports the BCD396T and BCD996T scanners only.
- Supports the concept of dynamic system allocation and the use of systems instead of banks.
- Channel descriptions are automatically retrieved from the scanner.

See version history for other information:
http://bellsouthpwp.net/k/d/kd5eis/IDTracker/IDTrackerIIVersion.htm

ID Tracker and ID Tracker II can be found here:

If you want to get into esoteric terms consider:

The man who uses a plotting board to calculate artillery elevations and azimuths is called a "COMPUTER".

indeed he his

but programing a device is clearly the work of a programer "lloyd" is trying to play games by switching the word Program out for software

as you have helped to prove the terms are not synonyms

Sorry, but I can say for an absolute fact that your 're wrong. It had kept me out of ham radio and I know exactly what kind of person that I am. And before the obligatory "lazy" word is trotted out, I have to work for the pay cheque that buys the radio, pays the rent for the building that the radio is in and pays for the tower that is in the back yard. I have to work extra to pay MORE for a place where I am allowed a tower, as opposed to less expensive digs.

Honestly, I can't believe how some pro-coders look down on no-coders with such contempt. I was once a member of a "live steam" model railroad club. These were larger model steam trains that ran with real steam instead of electric power. They could be run with either propane or coal, depending on the individual. The guys who built their locomotives from scratch NEVER looked down on the guys who bought theirs from a classified ad. The guys burning coal did NOT call the propane guys "lazy". We all enjoyed a fine hobby and club meetings were always good fun and most informative. It was great for a mechanic, like myself, to rub shoulders with experienced retired machinists who built these locomotives. At one of our "open houses", which were located outdoors at the club track, my daughter took her first steps.

Isn't ham radio supposed to be like that? Is there no camaraderie?

> Honestly, I can't believe how some pro-coders look down on no-coders with such contempt. I was once a member of a "live steam" model railroad club. These were larger model steam trains that ran with real steam instead of electric power. They could be run with either propane or coal, depending on the individual. The guys who built their locomotives from scratch NEVER looked down on the guys who bought theirs from a classified ad. The guys burning coal did NOT call the propane guys "lazy". We all enjoyed a fine hobby and club meetings were always good fun and most informative. It was great for a mechanic, like myself, to rub shoulders with experienced retired machinists who built these locomotives. At one of our "open houses", which were located outdoors at the club track, my daughter took her first steps.

Yes ham radio is supposed to be camaraderie. People are supposed to help each other. The divisiveness stems from the fact that too many no-coders appear to want to change the requirements with no knowledge, experience, or understanding of the requirements. In addition, most of us have experienced people who said they could not learn code but upon questioning find that they did not use a good training method and did not train correctly. Yet when they decided they were tired of waiting did learn it and got their upgrade. Then finding out how useful it was in ham pursuits were glad that they had done it.

So far of each of the reasons that people put forth as to why they can't learn it have been disproven by the example of other people with the same problem having gone ahead and done it. The 5wpm level is obtainable although some of the problem do make faster speeds a problem (constant tinnitus may be a severe problem at 20 wpm for example). My ex-OM had 70% hearing loss in both ears and severe tinnitus. He passed the 5wpm. I know people with dyslexia who have passed. The blind have passed. Even the deaf have passed using flashing lights or vibrating pads.

Do you have competitions in your model railroading activity? If you enter that competition, you all have to follow the published rules with no exceptions. If it is a competition for the "homebrewers", then those who don't do so can enjoy viewing them but they cannot enter into the competition.

Speaking as a ham licensed for 50+ years, I would say a lot of the divisiveness stems from coded hams trying to substitute Morse code skill for technical knowledge and intelligence.

Ham#1: "I've got a PhD in RF Engineering."

Ham#2: "Who cares, I flunked out of high school but I can do 40 wpm at Morse code. So there!"

Eliminate the code requirement and triple the difficulty of the technical exams. Problem solved.

Nope, won't solve the problem.

The solution is to accept people as true hams that passed the exams existing at the time they were licensed. PERIOD!!

What lie??

No-coders are missing a major portion of the HR experience. That is NOT a lie! It is a fact.

Example: you can call yourself a marine two days after enlistment. But, you become a Marine after completion of basic training! The commitment to success through a period of trial and learning makes the Marine not the uniform.

No-coders have enlisted in the hobby. But, ...

Thanks to all who responded. I purchased the latest ver of Scancontrol but for some reason it will not recognize my bc898t.

It worked perfectly for my 245XLT but will just not connect with my bearcat 898T. I tried 2 different com cables and two computers, both with working com ports and it will just not find it.

Anyone else have this kind of problem? Any ideas for a fix? I have gone through the setup a dozen times and tried several diff baud rates but it just will not locate the bc898t at all.

And before anyone asks, yes the readout on the scanner reads "RMT" which sets it in remote mode. And btw, I have reset it a dozen times too...

HELP !!!!!!!

Mike

I have not experienced EME or FS-ATV or a great many other areas of amateur radio but I have done CW. I don't do it anymore but I have experienced it. CW is the one mode that can get through under almost any condition. You can (I can't anyway) copy CW in the middle of a thunder storm, using the Aurora as a reflector, using meteor ionization trails as a reflector or just direct point to point contact to accomplish this.

Try that with FM, AM, SSB voice or digital.

The problem with this and similar threads is a number of individuals do not feel that they need to learn CW because they don't intend to use it.

A person of "Quality" may never need the proper etiquette to greet the Queen but you had better know how to be considered as such a person.

I do digital signals off meter trails most days that I operate I have been there done that got the qsl card indeed if they simply don't want to use it (in my it is can't use it or close enough for any reasonable person) why should they have to learn it

It's too easy to find hams that know code, used code and hated it.

>Example: you can call yourself a marine two days after enlistment. But, you Poor analogy. The Marines NEED harsh training to be able to do their difficult jobs properly as lives and the nation depend on them. The training is not a test of commitment, it is a harsh reality.

Ham radio is just a hobby.

>No-coders have enlisted in the hobby. But, ...

Did you not read my last post? It's right below. The guys who built their own locomotives did NOT go up to the guys who bought theirs and say "You are not a real model steam train operator!!!"

It's just a hobby.

The solution is to accept the people who are licensed, regardless of weather or not you agree with the test method.

My dad got his drivers license back in 1943 with NO test at all! They just asked him "Are you blind?" He said "No" and the response was "That will be $1 please".

I got my license in 1978 and I had to take driver training and pass 2 tests. According to some of the pro-code logic here, I should walk up to him and tell him that he is not a real driver and that I am better at driving than him. That would go over like a lead balloon.

That does NOT justify the snot-nosed attitude.

Bravo for them. But that does not explain why some pro-coders are such snot-rags.

No competitions, just a bunch of guys who like live steam model trains. The club did not exist for that.

I forgot to mention that my dad has had a perfect driving record, not one ticket in 63 years. [yes, I did ask him] As for me, I have been known to fracture a traffic law or two. I ended up paying a hefty price for that but my record is clean now.

So, you see, lack of testing did not make my dad a bad driver while training and testing did not make me a good driver [at least not back in my teen years]. But then, I am a mechanic and I can rebuild a transmission in my back yard and you're not a real driver if you can't.

It is usually because they don't have a clue technically and base their entire level of self esteem on skill in an obsolete mode. Kicking out all the people with an IQ of less than 110 out of amateur radio would probably solve the whole problem.

Not according to my logic. He met the requirements of the time and you have met the requirements of yours.

No it doesn't but there are a lot of "better than thou" types in all areas of human endeavor. Ignore them or you'll drive yourself nuts.

As I said, human nature has a lot of negative aspects no matter what the activity. All one can do is ignore it and do their personal best.

Still my point is that when there are rules, one is obliged to follow them whether they like them or not.

Not hardly. A couple of the most obnoxious people I know rate as geniuses on IQ tests. Brain power and social graces are independent attributes.

I am looking for the battery specification for the Plectron 720A (monitor receiver).  The documentation that I have does not list the original battery number. There was no battery in unit when I received (common).

Could have really used feature with loss of commercial power in recent storm events.

I have another question if I put the antenna half way up the tower will I have decreased signal coming into the antenna through the triangular tower. would this not let the antenna be truly Omni? my tower is about 75 feet tall and I do not have access to the top of the tower?

Hi people,

Just to let you know that I have put up for download a Radio Logging database app for MS Access for whom ever wants to have a play with it. I did create it for myself but with a little tweaking here and there it is now suitable for the general public.

http://radio.mctowers.co.uk

Enjoy!

MC

I have been on E-bay looking for another scanner for my car.I was looking very hard at the BC 700.Then I looked at a BC 350c witch I belives picks up the same freqs.I`v seen the price of the 700s go up to $150.00.I got a BC 350c for $52.00.I know the BC 700 can be modded very easy to pick up cell phones,but with cell phones all going to dig. you will not be able to hear anything anyways.So why are so many people wanting the BC700 made over ten years ago over the BC 350c that was made less than two years ago and they can get them for less $$.Am I right on this ? Besides the 700 being able to pick up cell phones ,What is the differents between the two ?

Depending on the distance between the tower and the antenna, and the frequency, you'll have a directional antenna pointing somewhere - either away from the tower, side-to-side relative to a line between the antenna and tower or somewhere between the two. You'd have to mount the antenna at least 3 or 4 wavelengths at the lowest frequency you're interested in (which would be around 25 feet at 150 MHZ, further for aircraft or VHF-lo) - 6 to 10 wavelengths is better - to get back a somewhat circular pattern.

Since you'll be using the antenna at widely different frequencies there's no one solution unless the transmitters you want to monitor just happen to all be exactly where the antenna pattern points for that frequency. If you're that lucky, buy all the lottery tickets you can find - they'll all be winners.

   Sorry, but I see absolutely NO "obligation to perform some service [to the nation or community]."  That is one of the myths promulgated by the ARRL and its followers.

   The word "service" used by the FCC all throughout Title 47 C.F.R., all Parts, is a regulatory term referring to a type and kind of radio activity being regulated.
   [see Citizens Band Radio SERVICE or Radio Control Radio SERVICE as two examples in Part 95]  Also, as Cecil Moore mentioned, the government is doing its citizens a service,
   NOT the other way around.

   If an individual WANTS to VOLUNTARILY perform some service, then excellent.  There is NO "obligation" to do so unless there is some law requiring it.  Personally, I think all citizens of the USA should do at least one term of Jury Service.  In California there is a state law that eligible citizens shall serve, for a time and times as stated by law.  [I've done five terms of Jury Service here]  Anyone who WANTS to voluntarily sit in on a court is allowed to (with some special conditions not permitting certain trials).  Those spectators are NOT obligated to do so.

   USA amateur radio service is a VOLUNTARY activity.  It is an avocation, not an occupation.  In other words it is a HOBBY.  It's a fine hobby, tens of thousands of citizens engaged in it.  But, it is still a HOBBY.  It is NOT "essential" for the good of the nation.  It is high time that everyone quit dreaming about imaginary glory of "serving the community" through amateur radio...time to look at what it IS in the real world.

you left out something there is one other type of service to oneself

I do think we are obligated to preform one type of service and learning something counts

additional in an emergency if we find we can be a of service I'd say we have a moral duty to serve as humans and citizens and our radios give ways not avalable to many another type of real service we can perfrom (although some hams like Robeson seem unable to do so) is simply one to one diplomacy

I know during the elian Matter I enjyed tlaking abit to few cubans (helped that I was vsiting florida for part of that it drew an interesting response from them when I said something like you know if the case were of people totaly within the USA the father would have to go the florida himself most likely if he wanted his kid back and givent he US does not trust the cuban govt...

I'd probably see Incentive Licensing the same way if I was a kid in your shoes. However you came into ham radio when it was already old news and were something like 14 years late to the Novice game I played in in all it's nooks and crannies. You can read about it and talk about early '50s ham radio it but since you didn't actually live it I wouldn't expect you to fully appreciate what a huge deal Incentive Licensing was to my Novice class. It was even more of a kick in the butt for for the old-timers of those days.

The FCC doesn't play silly games like that. If the guy in QRZ.com has it right they screwed up a bit and need to tweak the R&O. No relections on the ARRL one way or the other but the FCC will come out of it a bit of egg on it's face.

Because historically we've also been treating 80 & 75 as two separate bands. Convenient ancient custom.

Time to bail away from the trashheads, I'm outta here and back to the paint, varnish and antenna work.

Hi,
One of the previous posters made a good point in that the radio is not nearly as valuable as it used to be.
Good luck on your auction however..

Not for any particular individual, anyway.

That's a falsehood, Len. ARRL talks about the service provided by amateur radio, but does not say there is an obligation to do so.

Irrelevant.

> If an individual WANTS to VOLUNTARILY perform some service, then excellent.

And they do!

> There is NO "obligation" to do so unless there is some law requiring it.

Agreed!

However, one of the justifications for the continued existence of the Amateur Radio Service is the public service performed by radio amateurs using amateur radio.

> Personally, I think all citizens of the USA should do at least one term of Jury Service. In California there is a state law that eligible citizens shall serve, for a time and times as stated by law. [I've done five terms of Jury Service here] Anyone who WANTS to voluntarily sit in on a court is allowed to (with some special conditions not permitting certain trials). Those spectators are NOT obligated to do so.

Irrelevant.

> USA amateur radio service is a VOLUNTARY activity. It is an avocation, not an occupation. In other words it is a HOBBY.

It's not just a hobby, though.

> It's a fine hobby, tens of thousands of citizens engaged in it.

Hundreds of thousands of US citizens.

> But, it is still a HOBBY.

It's not just a hobby, though.

> It is NOT "essential" for the good of the nation.

How do you know for sure?

> It is high time that everyone quit dreaming about imaginary glory of "serving the community" through amateur radio...time to look at what it IS in the real world.

What does that mean?

Amateur Radio does indeed perform public service - voluntarily. That's a fact, not an opinion.

It is possible.

There will be some loss.

Adding a preamp before a splitter tends to overload the front ends of my scanners with paging services.

That you don't see it doesn't mean it doesn't exist.

Where? You have just spouted a falsehood, Len.

Irrelevant.

What about a moral obligation?

Suppose I were driving on a winding country road and came upon the scene of a one-car accident that had occurred only a few minutes before I arrived.

And suppose the occupants of the car in the accident needed help, and I had the means to call for help.

Would I not have at least a moral obligation, if not a legal one, to call for help?

Suppose the only available communication was by Amateur Radio - would I not have at least a moral obligation, if not a legal one, to use Amateur Radio to call for help?

Even those who are not mentally or physically competent to do so? Would you want to be judged by a jury composed of the mentally ill? They're citizens.

Hundreds of thousands of US citizens.

Does amateur radio not perform any service to the community, Len?

Because he's a non-stakeholder who has been blatantly abusing his right to comment on matters before the FCC involving the amateur service for years. A presumption  based on applied common sense and experience.

indeed the cash is problem I was well on the way leading to the NPRM then the backer back out thinking the FCC is finaly goign to take care it

the longer thay wait the more likely the challange become but they (the ffc ) are on record as saying it will be out after the onibus and before the end of the years

If you buy the 5-10$ variety from Rat Shack you first are going have to convert from F type to BNC connector, because they are a made for tv device. You will get a small loss from the 2 added adapters, and the splitter will be around -3.5db loss. From input to splitter to the scanners input it will be close to a -4db loss. Then there is Stridesberg, who does sell splitters (passive and active) that have BNC connectors. The active ones will show no loss and the passive will be -3.5db loss again. If you go with Stridesberg be prepared to write a healthy sized check, but they are close to mil-spec as you can get and is very good stuff. Dont let the -3.5db loss scare you,, most times you wont know the difference, unless you are in a very weak signal area.

Forgot to add an important point. If you have a coax run of more than 10-20 feet please dont use RG 58. You will get more loss from it than the splitter especially at the higher freqs. If you dont want to/cant run the bigger heavier coax i.e. RG 213 go with RG 6. Its a 75 ohm cable instead of 50 but has very good loss rates and the difference in impedance's will be negligible and its the same basic diameter of RG 58.

We can all toss comments at all NPRMs, that's not the point. The topic under discussion is Anderson's behavior during ham NPRM commenting periods and the way the FCC probably handles his "comments".  As far as stakes go Anderson himself made it transparently clear years ago that he has no stake whatsoever in the regulation of the amateur radio service when he stated that he is not a ham and does not have any intention of  becoming a ham in the future.

Flooding the FCC with 200 comments on one ham radio NPRM is juvenile and abusive behavior every way you look at it. And it's not in the direction of supporting the cause of you NCTAs.

> did you read a different constituions than I

Again that's not the point, the point is how his submissions are regarded and dealt with after the FCC has processed them in accordance with all the laws under which they operate. You gotta be as naive as a newborn if you think the FCC attaches as much value to any of Anderson's  nonsense as they do, for instance, to the inputs submitted by the ARRL.

sas I understand he filed one coment during the main period and a bunch (i'll accept your count till len says different) of reply coment in the period set aside for that that is on paper at aleast how the system is suposed to work doing things the right way is abusive in your mind?

I have an old Regency Flight Scan VHF-Air only scanner but no manual. I am looking for instructions on programming the channel bank and also programming direct access frequencies.

Here is the scanner: http://www.rigpix.com/regency/regency_actt720a.htm

Thanks in advance.

I do not think you "program" it per se. It probably uses crystals.

It's a programmable scanner, and not that hard to program as I remember; I used to have one but it's been about 15 yrs. since I programmed one. I do remember that after entering the freq. by the keypad (on the left) then the number of the channel you wanted the freq. entered into must be plressed (on the right). I didn't have a manual with mine either, but it was simple to figure out.

p.s. Sell that one at a garage sale and get a RS-2052 at a close-out steal.

Not dropped here.
